Health Insurance Budget On Hold

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council's finance committee put on hold its approval of the city's health insurance budget for the upcoming fiscal year after Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci expressed concern over Quincy College's ability to reimburse the city for its share of health care costs.

The committee reviewed the health insurance budget on May 28. It will take up the matter again on June 15.

Mayor Thomas Koch's proposed budget for fiscal year 2021, which begins July 1, allocated $52.55 million for health insurance, up from $49.06 million in the current fiscal year.

During the May 28 hearing, Palmucci said Quincy College - which is municipally owned - has not paid the roughly $2 million it owes the city for health care costs this fiscal year and the councillor said he was

Late July Earliest Date For H.S. Graduations

City Must Follow New State Guidelines

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy will not be able to hold in-person ceremonies to honor the graduates of its two high schools until July 19 at the earliest under new guidelines issued by the state amid the coronavirus pandemic.

Supt. Richard DeCristofaro briefed the School Committee on the new guidance from the state on May 27. In addition, the superintendent and Mayor Thomas Koch said two separate ceremonies could be needed for Quincy High School given the size of its senior class.

Quincy officials have been working on plans to hold the graduation ceremonies for Quincy and North Quincy High Schools - which were originally scheduled for next week - this summer at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Mayor

Thomas Koch has said each graduate would receive two tickets to give to family members who could attend the ceremony, and those in the crowd would be spaced apart in the stands to adhere to social distancing guidelines.

Koch on May 27 said there is enough room for 530 to 540 people to sit in the home seats inside the

$117 Million QPS Budget Proposed

By SCOTT JACKSON

The proposed $117.39 million Quincy Public Schools budget for the upcoming fiscal year would allow for the hiring of more than a dozen new teachers and other staff members, including a new administrator at a salary of $120,000.

The budget proposed by school officials for fiscal year 2021, which begins July 1, represents an increase of $1.98 million over the current budget.

School officials unveiled their proposed budget at a meeting of the School Committee's budget subcommittee on May 27. The subcommittee will continue to review the budget this Wednesday.

The budget has three funding sources. The bulk of the money comes from the city's general fund. Mayor Thomas Koch has proposed giving the school system $111.19 million from the general fund in his fiscal year 2021 budget proposal, up from $110.21 million this fiscal year. The City Council

'Neat Neighbors' Nominations Open

Mayor Thomas Koch announces the return of the city's "Neat Neighbors" contest that recognizes property owners that do an excellent job maintaining their home or business.

Friends, relatives, neighbors, or strangers can nominate an address for recognition from now through Labor Day by calling (617) 376-1251 or emailing pdoherly@quincyma.gov.

"This has been a challenging year where we all seek some normalcy in the face of the pandemic," Koch said. "For many people, myself included, doing some creative work in the yard becomes an outlet. We hope to recognize those folks that help our city look beautiful by making their properties look beautiful."

Each nominated property will be reviewed to ensure it meets the requirements for property maintenance. Once the property qualifies, winners will be selected at random to avoid competitive judgments. Qualifying properties will have maintained lawns, plantings, and homes in good repair.

A special category will be added for business and commercial properties this year.

"This has been a rough year so far for businesses and we can understand that aesthetics aren't the top priority right now," Koch said. "However, there are still many folks that do a fantastic job of presenting their businesses and we want to make sure we applaud those that are able to do that."

There will be 25 residential properties and 10 commercial properties chosen as winners. Those properties selected as winners will receive a $30 gift certificate at a Quincy-based garden center to recognize their efforts and help continue their work.

is responsible for approving those funds, but the School Committee determines how they are allocated.

School officials also anticipate receiving $5.2 million in Circuit Breaker funding from the state in the new fiscal year. An additional $1 million in funding would come from the federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act.

James Mullaney, the school system's director of business affairs, said the city's spending on the school system will total more than $170 million in the new fiscal year after factoring in items such as health insurance and capital costs that are paid directly out of the general fund.

There are 12 expected retirements upcoming in the school system, Mullaney said. Those positions will be filled but the new hires are brought on at a lower salary, saving the school system approximately $40,000 per position.

Mullaney said the school department was left with an additional $780,000 to allocate in the new budget after accounting for additional funding from the general fund, the cost savings created by retirements, and contractual raises and step increases.

The budget Mullaney and Deputy Superintendent Kevin Mulvey presented would use that $780,000 to hire 13.5 new full-time equivalents.

The new hires would include two English language learning teachers at the high school level; 1.5 academic classroom teachers if needed to keep class sizes in line with the district's standards; two literacy teachers; four special education teachers; and one speech therapist.

The plans would also include funding to hire a new high school guidance staff member, an IT support staff member, and a new central office administrator. Mullaney said the new central office administrator — whose salary would be $120,000 — would have responsibilities such as education evaluation, data collection and professional development.

Committee members asked several questions about the new administrative position during the meeting.

Kathryn Hubley requested the committee be provided with a job description for the new administrator.

"Could we get more of a job description for what this position entails? From first hearing about it, it was more of a director of HR position and now...it's ed. eval. and data collection," she said.

Hubley also asked if the position was going to be filled before or after a new superintendent is hired.

Mullaney said he would be able to provide a job description. He added that the school department would be willing to work with the committee on the timing of the hire.

Douglas Gutro said he would prefer the new superintendent be the one to choose the new administrator.

"I do think a new superintendent deserves the opportunity to pick a member of their leadership team," he said. "If funded, it is fair for that individual to make a determination as to what those needs are. I think that's just the wise way to go."

Koch, who is the chairman of the school board, said the new hire would have an important role to play over the summer as the city prepares to re-open schools that have been closed amid the coronavirus pandemic. The mayor said he would ask city councilors to cut the funding for the position rather than wait until a new superintendent is hired before the job is filled.

"We are in uncharted territory. We are looking at all kinds of things this summer to prepare for," Koch said.

"This is a position to add to the team to give them greater flexibility, more brain power, more hands on getting things done. I certainly don't want to wait until September. In fact, if that is what the committee wants to do, I will have the council cut the money right out of the budget."

Emily Lebo said not waiting to allow the new superintendent to make the hire could send the message that Mulvey — who will serve as interim superintendent once Supt. Richard DeCristofaro leaves later this month — has the inside track on the superintendent's job.

"My concern is the optics of this. It looks like we are deeming Mr. Mulvey is going to be the superintendent," Lebo said, adding that some candidates could be dissuaded from applying for the superintendent's job.

"The optics are really disturbing to me."

Koch said he disagreed with Lebo's comments.

"I don't agree the with the optics issue at all. I think it is an addition to the team, to the structure of our organization that is going to pay dividends over time for our district," Koch said.

Committee vice chairman Anthony Andronico said the addition of the new administrator could help make up for the departure of DeCristofaro. Andronico said the new administrator could be of assistance in a number of different areas, such as re-opening the schools, curriculum, or the opening of a new special education learning center in the fall of 2021.

"There are a number of different things we are focused on," he said. "We can prioritize one way or another which area is more important to us, but at the end of the day I'd much rather that we have a position in there to help out as our leadership team sees fit."

Frank Santoro said the position should be filled sooner rather than later given the number of new hires that take place over the summer.

"I'm a firm believer in letting the superintendent make the call as to what this person does — whether it be Mr. Mulvey or whether it be someone else in the fall who could change that job description at the drop of a hat," Santoro said. "But I think this is a very key time for a person to be hiring for our opening in September and we need to have that position pretty soon."

Search Underway For New School Superintendent

By SCOTT JACKSON

The search for the next Quincy Public Schools superintendent is now underway, with applications for the position and a community survey both available online and a search committee in place.

Richard DeCristofaro, who has been the school superintendent since 2001, will leave the school department on June 13 to become the next president of Quincy College. Deputy Superintendent Kevin Mulvey will serve as interim superintendent once DeCristofaro departs.

The application and a brochure that provides a job description for the position and an overview of the school system were posted on the website for the Massachusetts Association of School Committees on May 28.

The deadline for candidates to apply for the job is June 25. The search committee will select semifinalists on July 2 and interview those candidates the week of July 13. Finalists would be chosen by the end of that week and would interview with the School Committee between July 27 and Aug. 7. The School Committee would then vote on a new superintendent Aug. 12.

Applicants for the position are required to hold or be eligible for a superintendent's license from the state. A master's degree is also required; an advanced degree is preferred. A minimum of ten years in education — including time as an administrator or as a teacher — is also required.

The job description also states that candidates should be able to demonstrate a willingness to commit to the position on a long-term basis.

Also posted online on May 28 was the survey that will be used to shape the leadership profile for the next superintendent. The search committee will use the results of the survey when it considers applicants.

The survey can be found online at surveymonkey.com/r/quincy2020.

The survey asks residents and those in the Quincy Public Schools community to rank their priorities for the school system and the skills and qualities they would like to see in the city's next superintendent on a scale from 1 to 5.

Among the two dozen priorities it asks about are educational leadership, college/career readiness, special education services, extracurricular activities, students' social and emotional wellbeing, technology, and quality of instruction.

The survey also asks about more than two dozen skills the next superintendent could possess, including budgeting and fiscal management, collective bargaining experience, experience in curriculum development and experience in classroom teaching.

In addition, the survey includes three open-ended questions asking respondents to identify what they believe the main strengths of the school system are, the main challenges the new superintendent will face, and which questions they would propose asking the candidates who apply for the job.

The MASCC will use the results of the survey to organize focus groups for various stakeholders — parents, teachers, administrators, staff, students and residents — that will likewise be used to shape the leadership profile.

The focus groups will be held between June 8 and June 19.

Mayor Thomas Koch announced his appointments to the 13-person search committee at the May 27 school board meeting.

Three School Committee members — Frank Santoro, Emily Lebo and Paul Bregoli — will serve on the search committee. Santoro will be the chairman of the search committee.

Other members of the search committee include Maura Papile, the district's senior director of student support services and special education; Quincy High School Principal Larry Taglieri; Jayden Hallisey, who is finishing his junior year at North Quincy High School; and Philip Chong, the president and CEO of Quincy Asian Resources Inc.

Three teachers, chosen by the Quincy Education Association, will serve on the search committee. They are Michael Ellis of Quincy High, Peg McDonough of South-West Middle School, and Nicole Prevost of Parker Elementary School.

Scott Alessandro will represent the Citywide PTO on the search committee and Cassandra Beck will represent the Quincy Parent Advisory Council. The final member, the parent of an English language learner, was to be determined as of press time.

State Planning How To Re-Open Schools This Fall

By SCOTT JACKSON

Gov. Charlie Baker said it is critically important that Massachusetts students are able to return to school in the fall after they spent much of the spring learning from home because of the coronavirus pandemic.

Speaking at a May 27 press conference in East Boston, Baker said it is important that students, who have been kept out of classrooms since March, be able to return in the fall. The governor said Jeff Riley, the state's commissioner of elementary and secondary education, has put together a team to determine how best to re-open schools amid the pandemic.

"There are schools all over the world that are open. While I certainly think a lot of those school systems and school districts and countries have done some pretty collaborative and imaginative things, I certainly believe we have the ability here to do imaginative and creative things that are safe for kids and faculty and administrators as well," Baker said when asked about re-opening schools.

"Commissioner Riley has a fairly large team he has put together that represents a lot of points of view to start working through this issue. I feel terrible — and I know almost everybody does — about how much school our kids lost as a result of this pandemic and I think we all believe it is critically important to do all we can to make sure they don't lose another half year or God forbid longer than that."

"There are a lot of kids for whom school is a really important part of their life for reasons that go beyond academics," the governor added. "I think we really need to work hard to make sure we come up with a workable plan."

When asked what the plan might entail, Baker said it would be too soon to say because it is still being worked out. He added that it is important for the plan to be released well ahead of the start of the new school year.

"This isn't the sort of thing that anybody thinks you can present to people on Aug. 20 and think that's going to be particularly helpful," Baker said. "People know that this is something people need to see and start thinking about and have a chance to kick the tires on sooner rather than later."

Firefighters Battle Pair Of House Fires

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy firefighters fought a pair of house fires within hours May 22nd — one in Houghs Neck and one in North Quincy — that displaced at least 10 residents.

Neither fire was considered suspicious, according to Deputy Fire Chief Timothy Burchill, and no injuries were reported.

Firefighters were called to the single-family home at 25 Peterson Rd. in Houghs Neck around 10 p.m. on May 22, Burchill said. The fire began in a deck area in the front left part of the house and extended into the walls.

The family living inside the house was already outside before fighters arrived.

The first firefighters who responded to the scene had issues drawing water from temporary hydrants in the area, Burchill stated, but were able to knock down the fire in about 20 minutes once they were able to tap into the hydrants.

Engine 6 and Ladder 1 remained on scene after the fire was knocked down as a precautionary measure.

The fire on Peterson Road caused an estimated $50,000 in damage. Burchill on May 27 said he was uncertain if the cause of that fire had been determined but said did not appear suspicious.

The second fire was reported on Holmes Street in North Quincy at 11:30 p.m., Burchill said. The fire began in the rear of 69 Holmes St., an unoccupied multi-family residence, and then spread to 67 Holmes St., another multi-family residence.

The 10 occupants living at 67 Holmes St. made it out safely and were given contact information for the Red Cross.

The fire on Holmes Street went to three alarms, Burchill said, and two ladder companies from Boston assisted Quincy firefighters on scene. The scene was cleared by 3 a.m.

Burchill said the Holmes Street fire caused an estimated $300,000 to $400,000 in damage.

The state Fire Marshal's Office was called to the scene to help investigate the Holmes Street fire, Burchill said. He stated the damage was too extensive to determine how the fire started, but it was not considered suspicious.

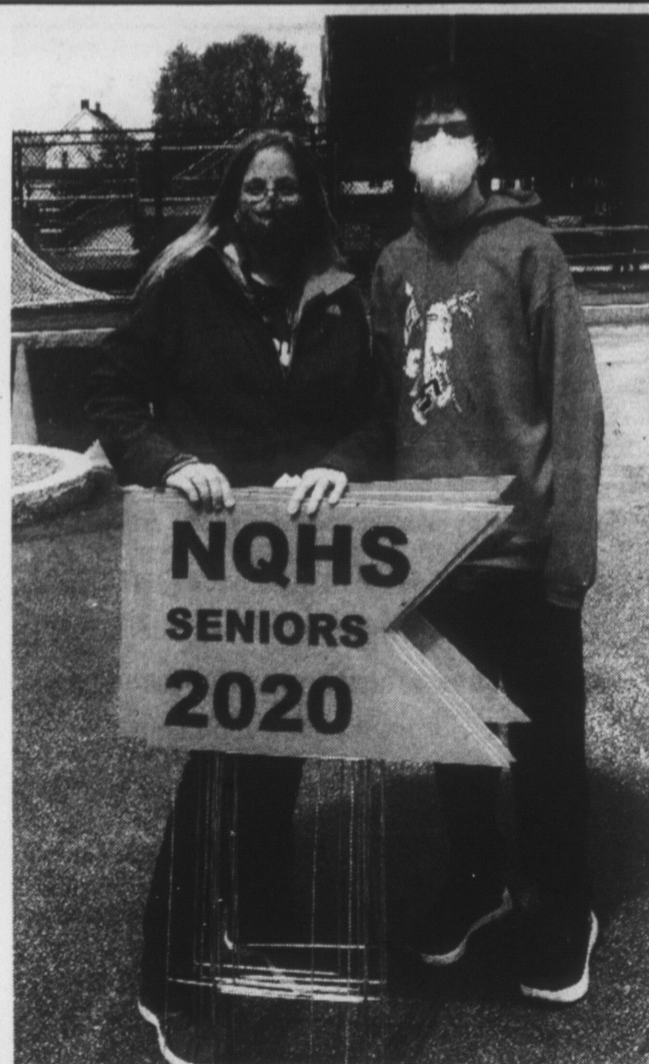

Burchill credited the firefighters for their efforts to put out the two fires on May 22 and noted several of the 35 new firefighters the city hired earlier this year were on duty that evening.

"They all performed very well, very professionally," Burchill said. "That there were no injuries is a feather in their cap."

In addition, the city's two new firetrucks — Rescue 1 and Ladder 2 — responded to both scenes. Burchill said their performance was outstanding, adding that Ladder 2 — a tiller truck the city purchased for its ability to navigate tight streets — "got into position with no problems at all."

VOLUNTEERS ACROSS the city are installing signs at graduating seniors' homes as a way to celebrate their student's accomplishments. The signs were purchased by North Quincy High School and Quincy High School PACs. Kathryn Hubley (left), a member of the Quincy School Committee, and her son Nathan, a graduating senior from North Quincy High School are among the many parents, teachers, and administrators helping with this effort. Courtesy Photo

It's More Important Than Ever To Support Local Businesses

By MARK LINNANE

The last few months of the COVID-19 crisis have been extremely stressful for all of us, almost everybody has experienced upheaval in their lives whether it be health issues, housing arrangements, or employment status.

Within this crisis, it's more important than ever that we support local businesses, the backbone of our communities.

Recent statistics show small businesses with 20 or less employees account for 89% of business entities across the country while 100 or less account for 96% of small businesses.

Not only do these entrepreneurs provide services in our neighborhoods, they live in the community or surrounding towns. They are the ones who give back to youth sports, answer fundraising requests, and employ our children with schedules to meet family or school needs.

They understand the importance of a strong community while striving to build businesses that will last for future generations. The national chains only come into our community when the start-up risk has been removed and failure is limited. Translation: they never take risks the way our own hometown business owners have done creating a better community now and in the future.

Nobody understands our community more than the small business owners who operate and live within our neighborhoods.

With this said, we must begin to make a concerted effort to support our local businesses.

The chain stores have profited because of size and resources through the current crisis and we thank them for providing us with food and necessities in a safe environment through this time period.

But the time is now to act as a community rising up and supporting our local business more than ever. Many of our businesses and shops have been shut down since March 17th and are either just opening or waiting on a date to reopen. The ones who braved the crisis and stayed open have been devastated with loss of revenue due to shelter in place requirements of customers.

The impact on these local businesses has and will continue to affect the community with the loss of revenue that in some cases can never be recaptured. The COVID crisis has also brought on tremendous hardship with anxiety to both owners and their workers on the fears of the unknown future.

Another problem we cannot ignore is the lower earning wage employees and our young adults starting out that have been impacted the most without employment. This includes tip and gratuities income from serving the public. On a larger scale the infrastructure chain is being impacted, examples being suppliers and landlords thus creating unforeseen havoc.

With all this said, the time is now to buy local and support our local business. We must remember that our own neighborhood businesses make decisions based on what is best for our community and not Wall Street investors. They fulfill our needs and wants by listening and understanding our culture.

For every business that survives only makes our community stronger with investment into jobs and supporting our real estate values. By showing support we continue to make our great community stronger and a desirable place to live.

Over the last 30 years Quincy has changed organically with diversity within our neighborhoods and culture of the businesses. With these changes the one thing that has stayed true is strong family values and caring for our neighbors. To maintain this culture of good will we must support our local merchants and service providers.

We can start by supporting our restaurants. Many of their workers have felt the brunt of this crisis. Just look for any local owned shop beauty services, barber shops, speciality food shops, any type of service providers. Spend the time seeking out locally owned convenience stores, gas stations, or dry cleaners for example. We must with good conscience support our merchants even if the cost is a couple more quarters. This support will pay dividends to our community in the long run.

If we all make an effort patronizing local establishments our community can become an even stronger community to live in. Quincy has reached such great heights as a community! Let's not stop now.

For all our neighbors who have been fortunate enough to experience no interruption of income working at big corporations or for the government please make a concerted effort to help our local businesses and keep our community strong. This support can only have a trickle up effect reaching all parts of society both financially and morally.

Let's show other communities why Quincy is the desired community to live in and will be for generations to come.

Unemployment Scam Targets Massachusetts Claimants

Criminal enterprises in possession of stolen personal information from earlier national data breaches have been attempting to file large amounts of illegitimate unemployment claims through the Massachusetts Department of Unemployment Assistance (DUA) system.

This is part of a national unemployment fraud scheme.

The Department of Unemployment Assistance (DUA) has begun implementing additional identity verification measures that will temporarily delay the payment timeframe for many unemployment claims in Massachusetts. As a result of these measures, certain unemployment claimants may be asked to provide additional identity information in order to verify the validity of their claim.

"Protecting the integrity of the unemployment system and ensuring benefits are going only to valid claimants is a top priority of the Department of Unemployment Assistance," said Labor and Workforce Development Secretary Rosalind Acosta. "While the program integrity measures we are taking will unfortunately mean that some claimants will experience temporary delays in payment, we believe these steps are necessary to respond to this unemployment scam. We are working rapidly to respond to this scheme and urge individuals who may have had a false unemployment claim filed in their name to contact the Department."

Individuals who believe they may have had a false unemployment claim filed using their identity are urged to utilize the Department of Unemployment Assistance fraud contact form at mass.gov/unemployment-fraud or to call the DUA customer service department at 877-626-6800.

Additional updates related to this criminal activity will be posted at mass.gov/unemployment as soon as they are available.

THIS VIEW of Faxon Road in Norfolk Downs is a 1920 postcard looking north from its intersection with Billings Road. The newly built Parker School (1916) is on the left; a horse-drawn wagon can be seen in the distance. The triple-deckers on the right were two of several built in this immediate neighborhood until the city stopped construction of triple-deckers citywide in the early 1920s. They had been deemed unsightly and unsafe. Quincy was the fastest growing community in the Commonwealth at the time and triple-deckers provided affordable housing for immigrants and factory workers coming to live here. There was a great deal of controversy over the stoppage with the Quincy Chamber of Commerce leading the fight to overturn the decision. But the city fathers prevailed and no more triple-deckers were built here. However, the city did allow four-family two-level side-by-side duplexes, but not many were built because they required larger lots. With so many small house lots in Quincy there certainly would have been many triple-deckers built here as there were in Dorchester, Brockton, Lowell and other "blue-collar" cities.

Mayor Seeks Funds For New Code Project

Mayor James R. McIntyre will seek more federal funds for a second Neighborhood Improvement Code Enforcement Program.

The Mayor said he hopes to get approval for a project "similar in scope" to the North Quincy Improvement Area Program for which the city received $1.8 million in federal money.

"We have several community areas under consideration for the second program," McIntyre declared. He declined to pinpoint them at the present time.

He said he would also seek final approval of an application for a second $71,000 federally financed Urban Beautification Program.

McIntyre said the North Quincy program has proven acceptable to the community and a success.

CITY SLUMLORDS TARGET OF ORDINANCE

A three-alarm fire that ravaged a condemned building in the Quincy Point business district has ignited a city councilor's battle against the slumlord.

Ward Two Councilor Clifford H. Marshall introduced an order enforcing strict penalties against property owners failing to take prompt action clearing condemned buildings.

Marshall was one of hundreds of witnesses at the three-alarm fire, which razed a condemned three-story structure on Washington Street.

Marshall said the building represented a hazard and criticized delays in its removal. Under Marshall's order a $1,000 fine would be imposed on property owners who allow their property to deteriorate to standards unfit for human occupancy. Property owners would be given three days to remove or suitably repair the building.

BBB Scam Alert: Student Debt Forgiveness – For A Fee?

By BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

Navient has more than 10 million student loan clients and recently settled a student loan forgiveness lawsuit. The results of the settlement won't affect what individual borrowers owe. However, scammers were quick to notice this news item and are now targeting borrowers with false claims of debt forgiveness – for a fee. Here's what you need to know.

How the Scam Works

You receive a call from a person claiming to represent Navient. They explain that as a part of the lawsuit settlement, your student debt is partially or completely forgiven. Of course, you'll need to confirm your personal information and pay a fee to "transfer" the debt from Navient to "the Department of Education" or another official-sounding organization. These claims are based on actual procedures you may in fact qualify for, but this unsolicited caller is not working in an official capacity or related to any of the organizations cited in the call.

The caller explains the fees necessary, usually on a monthly basis, then request either debit or credit card information. Then, they will begin making withdrawals according to the payment plan you agreed to: Many consumers notice something is wrong when their Navient loan payment continues to be required, even after setting up payments with the new company.

Navient customers will not receive a phone call offering to transfer your loan. If you engage with these con artist callers, you could compromise your personal information and lose money as well. Instead, look for other options such as the Public Service Loan Forgiveness and Department of Education for deferral or other information in relation to your type of loan.

How to Avoid the Scam

• Understand how the Public Service Loan Forgiveness program works. Thanks to the lawsuit settlement, you can now request information from Navient about whether or not you qualify for student loan forgiveness. Keep in mind that you must initiate a request for information.

• Don't take unsolicited callers at their word.

Remember that legitimate businesses and government offices do not call people without their permission. If you receive a call out of the blue, don't be quick to give out your personal information, even if the caller offers you a great deal.

• When in doubt, hang up. If you aren't sure about a caller and their claims, ask for a call back number, hang up, and do your research. A little digging will usually reveal if you were speaking with a legitimate company or not.

• Visit official websites to learn about loan forgiveness. You can find out more about whether you qualify for loan forgiveness by visiting the Federal Student Aid website and Navient's official website.

Make Sure All Can Vote Safely This November

READERS FORUM

Our public health and our democracy are at stake in November, and I'm calling on the House of Representatives and Massachusetts elected officials to make sure all of us can vote safely.

The House must keep up the pressure to provide at least $3.6 billion in additional election funding for states and require that states take the necessary steps to ensure safe voting in November.

Many members of the Massachusetts House delegation are already leading the way in the fight for safe voting in November – and I'm counting on them to continue to fight for voters in MA and across the country.

As a Massachusetts resident, it's important to me that voters in MA and in every state have safe and equal access to the ballot box. Americans should not need to choose between protecting their health and exercising their right to vote this election cycle. Unfortunately, if our voting system is not altered appropriately, the most marginalized will suffer the most.

Requiring states to provide vote-by-mail, online registration, early voting, and protections for poll workers will ensure equal access to the vote across the country.

Elected officials: we're counting on you to safeguard our lives and our Constitutional right to vote – in Massachusetts and in every state. Do the right thing and protect our November elections.

AAA Examines 10 Years Of Fatal Teen Crash Rates During Summer

Nationwide, more than 8,300 people died in crashes involving teen drivers from 2008 to 2018 during the "100 Deadliest Days," the period between Memorial Day and Labor Day. That's more than seven people a day each summer.

The combination of schools closed, activities curtailed, summer jobs canceled, and COVID-19 restrictions being lifted, could prove deadly as teens take to the road this summer. AAA recommends that now is a good time for parents to both model safe driving behaviors and help ensure their teens practice them too.

"The last decade of crash data show shows that teens continue to be over-represented in crashes and summertime marks an increase of fatal crashes for this age group," said Mary Maguire, director of Public and Legislative Affairs at AAA Northeast. "The data analysis has found that for every mile driven, new teen drivers ages 16-17 years old are three times more likely to be involved in a deadly crash compared to adults."

Due to their inexperience, teen drivers are at a higher risk of crashes. According to the new AAA Foundation Traffic Safety Culture Index, about 72% of teen drivers aged 16-18 admitted to having engaged in at least one of the following risky behaviors in the past 30 days:

- Driving 10 mph over the speed limit on a residential street (47%)

- Driving 15 mph over the speed limit on a freeway (40%)
- Texting (35%)
- Red-light running (32%)
- Aggressive driving (31%)
- Drowsy driving (25%)
- Driving without a seat-belt (17%)

"Parents remain the best line of defense to keep everyone safe behind the wheel," Maguire said. "It's never too soon to educate teens on the dangers of distracted driving, speeding, and the impairing effects of alcohol and marijuana. But actions speak louder than words. Remember to model good behavior because your teen won't take your advice seriously if you don't follow it yourself."

To keep roads safer this summer, AAA encourages parents to:

- Talk with teens early and often about abstaining from dangerous behavior behind the wheel, such as speeding, impairment and distracted driving.
- Teach by example, and minimize risky behavior when driving.
- Establish a parent-teen driving agreement that sets family rules for teen drivers.
- Conduct at least 50 hours of supervised practice driving with their teen.

To support parents in conducting practice driving sessions during COVID-19 and beyond, AAA is providing a free four-page guide to help parents coach their teens on how to drive safely. The "Coaching Your New Driver - An In-Car Guide for Parents" AAA Parent-CoachingGuide 2020 offers behind-the-wheel lesson plans, including a variety of "DOs and DON'Ts" to make the learning experience as helpful as possible. For parents, the guide can be beneficial as they coach their teens on a variety of routes, building on their formal behind-the-wheel training.

TeenDriving.AAA.com has a variety of tools to help prepare parents and teens for the dangerous summer driving season. The online AAA StartSmart Parent Session also offers excellent resources for parents on how to become effective in-car coaches as well as advice on how to manage their teen's overall driving privileges. Teens preparing for the responsibility of driving should enroll in a driver education program that teaches how to avoid driver distraction and other safety skills.

RMV Implementing Further Extensions To Expiring Licenses, Permits, Plates

The Massachusetts Registry is implementing further extensions to the renewal timelines for expiring motor vehicle inspection stickers, passenger plate registrations, professional credentials, and driver's licenses and learner's permits, including Commercial Driver's Licenses and Commercial Learner's Permits (CDLs / CLPs).

The RMV previously announced extensions for most credentials, passenger plate registrations and inspection stickers expired or expiring in March, April, and May. Now the RMV will provide an additional extension to those credentials and an extension to some credentials expiring in June, July, and August.

These extensions replicate the ongoing measures the RMV has taken to reduce the need for customers to physically visit an RMV Service Center or one of its business partners' facilities, allowing for 'social-distancing' by decreasing non-essential travel and customer volume. Additional, longer-term extensions will also allow the RMV to ensure 'social-distancing' guidelines are met as demand for in-person service and renewals resumes during the Commonwealth's reopening phases.

The new changes to expiration extensions will be in effect as follows:

- Driver's licenses and ID cards, including Commercial Driver's Licenses (CDLs), that expired or will expire in March, April, and May 2020, will now expire in September 2020 and do not need to be renewed at this time. Driver's licenses and ID cards that will expire in June have been extended until October 2020, those that will expire in July have been extended until November 2020, and those that will expire in August have been extended until December 2020 and do not need to be renewed at this time. The specific expiration date typically coincides with an individual's birth date. Customers holding an RMV credential marked "Limited-Term" that has expired or will expire between March 1 and August 31, 2020 should visit Mass.gov/RMV for more information and to check the validity of their credential. The RMV also recently introduced an online renewal option for CDL holders if they are self-certified in the Non-Excepted Interstate (NI) category for medical certification.

- Learner's permits, including Commercial Learner's Permits (CLPs), that expired or will expire in March, April, and May 2020, will now expire in December 2020. Learner's permits that will expire in June, July, and August will also be extended until December 2020. This extension will allow additional time for permit students and driving schools to complete in-car instruction and a road test when those functions are authorized to re-start safely.

Road tests for CDLs are still being conducted during the State of Emergency. Massachusetts State Police manage CDL road tests and require anyone taking a CDL road test to bring and wear a face covering for the entirety of the road test.

- In accordance with updated guidance from the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA), all CDL Medical Certificates expiring between March 1 and May 31, 2020, have previously been extended until June 30, 2020 and no additional extension will be applied. However, all CDL Medical Certificates expiring between June 1 and August 31 have been extended until September 30, 2020 and do not need to be renewed at this time.

Extensions to CDL Medical Certificates are intended to prevent license downgrades and elective medical visits, as well as alleviate demand on medical providers, during the State of Emergency.

• The annual motor vehicle safety and emissions inspection stickers that have expired or will expire in March, April, and May 2020 have been extended until July 31, 2020. No additional extensions will be applied, and inspection stations are open at their discretion within the public health guidelines to perform this work.

• All passenger plate registrations that have expired or will expire in March, April, and May 2020 have been extended until July 31, 2020. The RMV has also applied a 30-day extension to registrations that expire in June, which will now expire on July 31, 2020. Registration renewals can continue to be performed online at Mass.Gov/RMV during this time.

• All school bus, school pupil (7D), and bus registrations that will expire in June have been extended 30 days until July 2020. Professional credentials for School Bus Certificates, School Pupil Transport Licenses (7D), Inspector Licenses, Inspection Station Licenses, Driving Instructor Licenses and Driving School Licenses that have expired or will expire in March, April, and May 2020 have previously been extended until 90 days after the State of Emergency is lifted. The RMV has added June expirations to the previous extension and professional credentials that expire in June have 90 days after the State of Emergency is lifted to renew.

For the most up-to-date information on RMV extensions and other service and COVID-19 response measures, visit <https://www.mass.gov/info-details/rmv-covid-19-information>.

Rigatoni Sausage, Pepper Combo

By MARIE

Over the years my family has enjoyed all kinds of pasta made in various ways. Here is a recipe for rigatoni with sausage and peppers that always gets raves when I cook and serve it. The nice part is that other than the pasta this dish is made in all one pan.

RECIPE

- 1 pound of Italian sausage cut in pieces
- 1 red pepper, chopped
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1 cup of light cream (or half and half)

- 2 tablespoons of fresh parsley
- Salt and pepper to taste.
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- One half pound of Rigatoni (OR a favorite pasta can also be used)

Cook pasta according to directions.

In a large skillet cook the sausages, peppers, onion and garlic until the meat is browned and peppers are tender.

Stir in the cream, parsley, salt and pepper and cook for 6 or 8 minutes until sauce is thickened.

Toss pasta and Parmesan cheese into the sauce and serve immediately.

Social Security Matters

Are Social Security And Medicare Running Out Of Money?

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizen

Dear Rusty: I have been hearing reports that Social Security and Medicare will run out of money by 2035 and will only pay approximately 75% of benefits. First, is that true about Social Security? And second, will they reduce benefits to people who are already on it or just the new people signing up? Signed: Worried about the Future

Dear Worried: The financial difficulties facing both Social Security and Medicare are well known by those of us who work with these programs every day, and Congress is equally and acutely aware of the issues. But Social Security and Medicare are two entirely separate programs which require two entirely separate answers.

Let's discuss Social Security (SS) first. The SS Trust Fund now has about $2.9 trillion dollars in assets. These are reserves accumulated from past revenues which exceeded the cost of providing past benefits to recipients of Social Security. That seems like a lot of money but starting this year (2020) Social Security will need to use some of those reserves to pay full benefits. That's because benefits paid out to recipients in 2020 will be more than the money coming in (this was expected even before the pandemic exacerbated the problem). And that trend will continue, and worsen, as we go forward in time. Without Congressional action, the SS Trust Fund reserves will be exhausted in 2035. And unless Congress acts before then to increase SS revenue and/or reduce SS expenses, when the Trust Fund is dry an across-the-board cut in benefits will affect everyone. That's because with the Trust Fund empty, Social Security can only pay out as much money as it receives in revenue and it's currently estimated that, in 2035, that will result in a cut of 21% for everyone. Sadly, the actions needed to correct Social Security's financial issues are well known; what's missing is bipartisan cooperation in Congress to implement the changes needed.

There is no doubt that Social Security needs reform to be able to sustain full benefits for future generations and, hopefully, Congress will step forward soon to make those changes. Historically, any changes made to Social Security do not affect those who are already collecting benefits (it would be political suicide to do that), but rather will apply to future beneficiaries (much more palatable politically). Of course, that cannot be guaranteed but, if history is our guide, changes will eventually be made which shore up Social Security's finances, and those changes will affect only those who are not yet eligible to collect benefits.

As for Medicare, part of the FICA payroll taxes paid by every American worker includes an amount (1.45%) to pay for Medicare Part A (hospitalization) coverage for Medicare beneficiaries. Any excess collected goes into an "HI Trust Fund" reserved for paying Medicare Part A expenses. According to latest reports the HI Trust Fund is projected to run dry in about 2026 at which point, theoretically, only hospital expenses equal to revenue could be paid.

Medicare Part B coverage (for doctors and other outpatient services) is paid for from two sources - one source is the monthly premiums which are paid by every Part B beneficiary, and the other source is the Government's General Treasury (which picks up the difference between what is collected in Part B premiums and what is needed to pay healthcare expenses). Similarly, it's expected that the Government will shore up Medicare Part A as needed when the time comes (which it has in the past). So, while Medicare is clearly under a lot of financial stress from the ever-increasing cost of healthcare, it's highly doubtful that the program is in any danger going away. More probably, Congress will look to cut the program's expense structure, which would affect medical service providers more than individuals.

37 Earn Degrees At Bridgewater State University

Thirty-seven students from Quincy recently earned degrees at Bridgewater State University.

BSU's 179th Commencement Convocation for undergraduates and 12th Graduate Commencement Convocation, scheduled for May 16 and May 14 respectively, were postponed by the university in March when the COVID-19 pandemic exploded nationally and regionally.

At that time, President Frederick W. Clark Jr. pledged to the campus community to hold the ceremonies and reiterated that promise to the 2020 graduates in a video message taped on the university's historic quadrangle with the Class of 2020, university and college banners flowing from the columns of Boyden Hall in the background.

"We won't let this pandemic define your time at BSU. Your time on campus was defined by your wonderful professors ... the countless friends you have met ... and by how you have grown during your time at Bridgewater," President Clark said. "Most importantly, I hope you have discovered something about your passion and purpose in life."

The commencement planning team at BSU has been developing alternative plans for how and when BSU will honor its 2020 graduates that included feedback from seniors received through BSU's social media channels during the spring semester. An announcement to all graduates regarding the rescheduled commencement ceremonies is expected next month.

President Clark's video message, as traditionally happens at the end of commencement ceremonies, welcomed the graduates to the BSU alumni community, which surpassed 75,000 with the Class of 2020's graduate (454) and undergraduate (1,914) students.

"Our motto - 'Not to be Ministered Unto, But to Minister' - embodies the expectations we have of you as BSU graduates," President Clark said. "Not to be taught but to teach. Not to be served, but to serve. We are all incredibly proud of you. We are Bears forever."

A series of virtual events with a Toast to the Class of 2020 will continue until the time that members of the class can experience their walk across the stage on Boyden's historic quadrangle.

The following Quincy residents completed their program requirements in August 2019, December 2019 and May 2020.

Graduate: Alex Brean, Jacqueline A. Carvey, Korie A. Clegg, Kristen J. Cook, Elizabeth M. Emmons, James M. Flores, Anna Hosein, Sapana V. Kapadnis, Megan Keough, Lindsey Macpherson, Stephanie A. Mariano, Kathleen A. Norton, Kristyn E. Pieper, Victoria Violette and Jane Zell.

Undergraduate: Yasmina Adamo Desouza, Laryssa Almeida, Christina M. Bither, Aaron J. Blake, Patrick E. Boleza, Andy Chang, Carly A. Colantonio, Jennifer Conant, Tanya Connor, Abigail Ducat, Sarah R. Economic Impact Payments Via Mailed Debit Cards

The U.S. Department of the Treasury is now mailing Economic Impact Payments (EIP) in the form of prepaid debit cards.

Most Americans already received their EIP either by direct deposit to their bank account or in the form of a mailed check. However, the debit cards are being sent to some consumers for whom the IRS did not have bank account information on file. The Treasury announced that this method allows them to provide the money "efficiently and securely" to eligible recipients.

Consumers have contacted the Better Business Bureau (BBB), thinking these cards may be a scam. One consumer reported their concern on BBB Scam Tracker saying, "The letter states this is our Economic Impact Payment card and has a Department of the Treasury seal on the letter. Included is a prepaid debit card... it is being sent to us on behalf of the US Department of the Treasury in place of a paper check. This has to be a scam! We would appreciate it if you would check into this for us and others."

Rest assured, the IRS is, indeed, sending out prepaid debit cards. The IRS website states, "Some payments may be sent on a prepaid debit card known as The Economic Impact Payment Card. The Economic Impact Payment Card is sponsored by the Treasury Department's Bureau of the Fiscal Service, managed by Money Network Financial, LLC and issued by Treasury's financial agent, MetaBank®, N.A."

Consumers do, however, need to be vigilant to ensure that the card they receive is legitimate, and to be on the lookout for scams.

Tips on how to recognize a legitimate EIP card:

- It will arrive in a plain envelope with the return address of "Money Network Cardholder Services."

- The Visa® name will appear on the front of the card; the back of the card has the name of the issuing bank, MetaBank®, N.A.

- The welcome kit explains more about the EIP card. Please go to EIPcard.com for more information and to see a sample image of the card.

Once the card has been verified:

- Activate the card by calling the number provided, setting a 4-digit PIN
- Sign the card.
- Keep the card in a safe place.

- Do not share the information on the card with anyone.

- Use the card anywhere Visa cards are accepted and/or get cash back at a retailer or ATM. Note that most transactions are free, but certain uses could incur fees. For more questions, visit EIPcard.com/FAQ.

BBB warns that scammers may try to text, call or email you, trying to get you to give up your card number or your personal information. Report any phishing or scam attempts to the IRS and file a report with BBB Scam Tracker to warn others not to fall for the scam.

If you have not received your Economic Impact Payment, you can track your funds using the Get My Payment tracking tool (<https://www.irs.gov/coronavirus/get-my-payment>).

Revelations

Restaurants, movie theaters, ball parks, beaches and parks closed. Overseas traveling almost non-existent. Shelter in place. Stay at home advisory. These and others are the consequences of COVID-19.

Surprisingly, there's a silver lining, but painful one, to all this. Since we aren't distracted and entertained by the above, many of us have time to self-reflect, and see what's going on in the world, and to see what's important, and to see, hopefully, the truth.

We have seen the inequalities in our health system. More brown and black people are killed by COVID-19 because of past and present insufficient health care; more brown and black people are killed by COVID-19 because they are housed in dense neighborhoods and buildings; more brown and black people are decimated by COVID-19 because many are frontline workers in the grocery, hospital, meat packing, chicken and egg industries, and other service and food industries.

With the devastatingly high unemployment, we see minority, colored people being the first to be laid off or fired because they are either "low in the totem pole" or that their jobs are viewed as nonessential. If their jobs are essential, many must come to work, and risk being exposed to COVID-19, because their jobs can not be done remotely, and in many companies, the preventive COVID-19 measures in place are either inadequate or nonexistent.

And, now, with the George Floyd's killing / murder by a Minneapolis policeman, we again see the injustice and the institutionalized racism in the law enforcement system and in the overall American system and culture overall against black and brown residents, against all other non-white groups, against the poor and the powerless.

Revelations. True colors of what is terribly wrong with the United States. And this is only the tip of the iceberg.

What can we do? What do we do? What must we do?

I'm so - so religious, but I do believe in God and Jesus Christ, and we must ask the Lord for forgiveness. If we do, and admit our sins, He will help us in His time and way.

HOPE and the Lord go hand in hand. HOPE that He'll assist and guide us. HOPE that we are courageous enough to take a firm stand in the injustices we see, and not be afraid or intimidated. Jesus, despite taunts and threats, continued on until His mission and calling were completed.

PROTEST. PEACEFULLY. Let your words and presence, not any violent actions, be seen positively and constructively.

VOTE. Register and vote. Those government officials you see as "unfit, incompetent, profiteering, self-absorbed, insensitive, uncompassionate, vote them out of office."

INVOLVEMENT. Be involved. Volunteer in causes you believe in and are committed to. Run for government office. Social media with government officials. Let your voice be heard. Let your face be seen. Let your presence be felt.

BBB Tip: Safely Supporting Businesses As They Reopen

By BETTER
BUSINESS BUREAU

Gradually, signs are flipping over from closed to open, with precautions for both customers and merchants. Some consumers are ready to step back into the retail world to see, touch, and buy products and services, while others are more cautious.

While merchants are more than ready to receive business, they also want to keep everyone healthy and safe. The Centers for Disease Control has a lengthy list of recommendations for business owners to follow to maintain a clean storefront. Consumers are encouraged to do their own part, such as carrying hand sanitizer, wearing a mask, and keeping up with social distancing guidelines.

Human creativity, adaptability, and the desire to forge a different kind of normality in the coming months is the goal for both businesses and consumers. Finding a way to balance it all is the responsibility for both parties.

BBB recommends these tips for consumers to safely support business owners:

- Follow individual state and province requirements as businesses reopen.

- Stay up to date on the merchant's requests by email or social media; pay attention to the number of people physically allowed in the store and the store hours.

- Remember to use any gift cards tucked away from the holidays.

- Do comparison shopping online. If you're purchasing a big-ticket item such as a major appliance, consider checking features and availability online rather than going from store to store.

- Be patient as businesses restock shelves and begin new routines. Business owners are trying to reassure customers they're clean, safe and willing to provide a good experience.

AAA Survey: Gasoline Prices Up One Cent

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are up one cent this week, according to AAA Northeast.

AAA Northeast's June 1 survey of prices in Massachusetts finds self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $1.95 per gallon. Massachusetts's price is two cents below the national average of $1.97. A year ago at this time, the average price in Massachusetts was 80 cents higher at $2.75 per gallon.

Part of the incremental jump can be attributed to increases in gasoline demand nationally, which saw a 7% week-over-week increase. However, demand is still down nearly 25% compared to last year, according to the Energy Information Administration's (EIA) latest reports.

"Americans are slowly but steadily returning to driving, causing gas prices to increase across the country," said Mary Maguire, AAA Northeast Director, Public and Legislative Affairs. "The good news is gas is still cheap. Motorists can fill-up for $2/gallon or less at 70% of gas stations across the country."

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 72 cents, from a low of $1.67 to a high of $2.39. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area.

Remember to slow down and move over for any emergency vehicles on the side of the road.

Actinic Keratosis - Sun Cancer

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

Editor's note: due to the coronavirus outbreak and health emergency, Quincy Health Commissioner Ruth Jones is unable to submit new articles to The Quincy Sun. We are running some of her old health articles in the interim. The column below first appeared in The Sun two years ago.

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-F

Actinic keratosis (AK) is a small, rough spot occurring on skin that develops because of chronic sun exposure.

Actinic keratoses typically appear on sun-damaged skin. It is also referred to as a solar keratosis or sun cancer. The lesions of actinic keratosis generally range in size between 2-6 mm in diameter (between the size of a pencil point and that of an eraser). They are characteristically reddish in color, with a rough texture and often have a white or yellowish scale on top. There is often a prickling pain sensed when it is touched.

Those who acquire actinic keratoses tend to be fair-skinned people who have spent years outdoors at work or at play or who have exposed their skin to indoor tanning. Their skin frequently becomes wrinkled, mottled, and thinned from sun exposure. Others at risk for developing actinic keratoses include those who have their immune systems suppressed, such as organ-transplant patients, as well as patients with psoriasis treated with PUVA therapy (long-wave ultraviolet light plus an oral drug called Psoralen). Customary locations for actinic keratoses are the cheeks, bridge of the nose, rim of the ears, scalp, back of the neck, upper chest, and the tops of the hands and forearms. Men are more likely to develop the lesions on top of the ears, whereas women's hairstyles often protect this area.

Actinic keratoses are considered to be a precancerous or premalignant lesion, which means they may progress into an invasive skin cancer. Although the chance of an individual actinic keratosis developing into an invasive squamous cell carcinoma is less than 1%, it is common for patients with many of these lesions to continue to expose their skin to carcinogenic ultraviolet sunlight causing them to be more likely to develop invasive skin cancers. Squamous cell skin cancers are locally destructive and have a small but real potential for metastasis or spreading to other areas.

Treating actinic keratoses at an initial stage will help prevent invasive skin cancer. When patients are diagnosed with this condition, they are often surprised, saying that they never go out in the sun. The justification for this is that there can be a long delay, even decades, for these keratoses to develop. Short periods of sun exposure do not generally either produce actinic keratoses or transform them into skin cancers; they are usually the result of years of exposure.

The most successful treatment for an actinic keratosis is prevention. For light-skinned individuals, this necessitates minimizing their exposure to the sun. By the time actinic keratoses develop, however, the pertinent ultraviolet radiation exposure is often so far in the past that present preventive measures play a relatively small role. Fortunately, treatment methods are usually simple and straightforward:

- Cryosurgery: Freezing with liquid nitrogen

- Other forms of surgery: Doctors sometimes scrape away or burn off actinic keratoses.

- 5-fluorouracil (5-FU): Creams containing this medication cause actinic keratoses to become red and inflamed before they fall off. Even though effective, this method often creates unsightly and uncomfortable skin for a period of weeks, thus making it impractical for many patients. This method is best for patients who have a great deal of sun damage and many lesions. Once the skin heals, it frequently looks much smoother and even-toned.

- Imiquimod (Aldara): This immune stimulator is similar in its indications and effects to 5-FU.

- Ingenol mebutate (Picato): Is derived from the sap of a plant of the genus Euphorbia, which is related to the poinsettia plants that are popular at Christmas time. It is advantageous in the treatment of small areas, but causes significant irritation.

- Photodynamic therapy (PDT): This therapy involves applying an agent (aminolevulinic acid [Levulan] or ALA) that sensitizes the skin to light, leaving it on for about one hour, and then exposing the skin to light that activates the chemical.

This blue light is absorbed by the compound, releasing the energy as heat which is believed to destroy the actinic keratoses. Like 5-FU and Imiquimod, photodynamic therapy works best for patients with many lesions. Patients need to avoid exposure to sun or intense fluorescent light for two days after treatment to prevent ongoing peeling.

- Diclofenac (Solaraze): This cream is a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drug (NSAID), an agent related to ibuprofen (Advil, Motrin). Diclofenac is gentler than 5-FU or Imiquimod, causing less inflammation, but must be applied for a longer period of about two months to achieve only modest improvement.

- Superficial chemical peels using trichloroacetic acid (TCA) can also be effective. This procedure is performed in the doctor's office.

Sun avoidance is the easiest way to avoid actinic keratoses. This would include applications of SPF 50 sunscreens to exposed skin, wearing sun-protective clothing, shade-seeking when outdoors, and avoiding tanning. Concerns about vitamin D deficiency can be avoided by taking multivitamin supplements.

For patients who develop actinic keratoses it is usually recommended to have a doctor examine them at least annually. The rationale behind these regular checks is to be certain that new lesions have not developed and that old ones are not becoming thicker and more suspicious looking for cancer.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

Red Cross: Urgent Need For Blood Donations As Hospital Demand Increases

The American Red Cross has an urgent need for blood donations to prevent another blood shortage as hospitals resume surgical procedures and patient treatments that were temporarily paused earlier this spring in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Healthy individuals who are feeling well are asked to make an appointment to donate in the weeks and months ahead by downloading the free Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org, calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enabling the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device.

In recent weeks, hospital demand for blood products has grown by 30% after sharply declining in early April amid this rapidly changing and complex public health crisis. At the same time, blood drives continue to be canceled as many businesses and community organizations remain closed. Donors are needed to make and keep scheduled appointments to help meet the current need.

"Blood donors have played a vital role in the lives of patients who have needed lifesaving transfusions during this pandemic, and patients continue to depend on donors each and every day," said Paul Sullivan, senior vice president, Red Cross Blood Services. "The Red Cross appreciates the support of those who rolled up a sleeve to give in recent months, but the need doesn't stop. We need the public's help to avoid another blood shortage this summer."

It's important to remember that red blood cells must be transfused within 42 days of donation and platelets within just five days. So, they must constantly be replenished. There is no known end date in this fight against coronavirus, and the Red Cross urgently needs the help of donors and blood drive hosts to ensure blood products are readily available for patients.

Blood Drive

Safety Precautions

Each Red Cross blood drive and donation center follows the highest standards of safety and infection control, and additional precautions – including temperature checks, social distancing and face coverings for donors and staff – have been implemented to ensure the health of all those in attendance. Donors are asked to schedule an appointment prior to arriving at the drive and are required to wear a face covering or mask while at the drive, in alignment with Centers for Disease Control and Prevention public guidance.

About Blood Donation

All blood types are needed to ensure a reliable supply for patients. A blood donor card or driver's license or two other forms of identification are required at check-in. Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

Blood and platelet donors can save time at their next donation by using RapidPass® to complete their pre-donation reading and health history questionnaire online, on the day of their donation, before arriving at the blood drive. To get started, follow the instructions at RedCrossBlood.org/RapidPass or use the Blood Donor App.

39 ADAMS STREET BRAINTREE, MA 02184

On Friday, May 22, at approximately 7:30 p.m., Officers Levine and Millane were dispatched to the 7-11 store on Hancock Street in Wollaston for a report of a disorder in progress.

While en route to the call, Communications radioed that one of the male patrons involved brandished a knife and tried to stab another male patron and then fled in a black Nissan Sentra southbound on Hancock Street. Upon arrival, the male victim stated he was behind the suspect in line inside of the store. He said the suspect had all sorts of items in his hands and in his pockets and was not putting the items on the counter to pay for them.

The owner of the store who was on scene then confronted the suspect and asked if he was going to pay for the items. The suspect then threw the items on the counter towards the clerk followed by an exchange of words. The victim then said the suspect turned around and chest bumped him for no reason.

The victim pushed the suspect back which led to a verbal exchange. The victim then pushed the suspect out of the door of the store. The victim paid for his items, walked out of the store and headed for his car, but was caught off guard by the suspect, who came from the corner of the building brandishing a knife.

He came at the victim with knife out and facing the victim and then lunged at him with the knife. The victim evaded the knife and punched the suspect in the face. The suspect made a second attempt to stab the victim and then fled to his vehicle and drove off.

A witness stepped forward and verified the victim's account. The victim was able to take a picture of the suspect with his phone and showed it to Officer Levine, who immediately recognized the suspect from a shoplifting incident 30 minutes earlier at CVS. At that time, Officer Levine arrived on scene and talked with the suspect, who stated he was having trouble with his wife who had a drug problem and he was upset about it.

The officer asked the suspect several times if he would like to go to the hospital and speak to someone in counseling. He said he already sees someone from Quincy Mental Health and declined the officer.

His wife then called him so Officer Levine spoke with her and advised of what transpired. She stated the kids were waiting for him to take them out to dinner. At this point, the suspect was on the verge of tears. CVS got all the merchandise back and the suspect was sent on his way.

Based on the information about the stabbing attempt, Officers Millane and Levine then went to the suspect's address to make an arrest. The officers encountered the suspect at the top of the stairs and told him they needed to talk to him. The suspect suddenly changed his demeanor, grew angry and claimed the guy behind him at the store hit him so why should he be arrested.

Officer Levine explained to him he was being charged with assault with a dangerous weapon (knife) and ordered him to place his hands behind his back. At that point, the suspect began to tense up (fists clenched, tightening of body) and refused to put his hands behind his back so the officers guided him onto the couch where he was still resisting.

As the suspect was handcuffed, he kept asking why he was being arrested in front of his kids even though there were no children present. Once the suspect was placed in a police cruiser, Officer Levine did a sweep of the apartment to see if any children were present and to check on their safety but no one was there. The officer did see in plain sight a black and orange North Face hoodie on the kitchen table which matched the one that the suspect was wearing in the photo that the victim showed the officer as well as during the incident at CVS.

The knife was not recovered.

The 38-year-old Quincy resident was also charged with resisting arrest. The hoodie was logged into evidence.

Nice Work!

NEW TWIST ON

"THE GRANDPARENT SCAM"

Recently, in a nearby town, a resident received a telephone call from a scammer claiming that a family member was in trouble and money was required to get them out of jail. In most cases, the scammer will instruct the victim to wire transfer or gift card transfer the bail money.

This case is different!

The scammer asked the victim to have the money ready for a "courier" to pick up the money. Although this is rare, it is also dangerous to have a face-to-face meeting. This is something that should be reported to local police department!

At a minimum, a cruiser sitting in front of a potential victim's house would be a deterrent. Even better, a sting could be set up to catch these criminals!

As always, feel free to contact me, Lt. Dan Minton at 617-745-5719 or dminton@quincyma.gov.

FinCom Approves $287 Million In Dept. Budgets

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors gave preliminary approval to departmental budgets totaling $287.44 million as they began to review Mayor Thomas Koch's proposed spending plan for fiscal year 2021.

Councillors also made two cuts, worth a combined $68,000, to the budget to correct an accounting error during a pair of budget sessions on May 28 and 29.

Koch on May 18 proposed a $340.25 million general fund budget for the fiscal year that begins July 1, an increase of $10.47 million over the current budget of $329.78 million.

The mayor at that time called the proposed budget a protection plan meant to safeguard city personnel and key services from cuts amid the financial uncertainty caused by the coronavirus pandemic, while also aiming to hold the line on property taxes next year. The new budget includes no new positions, except for some in the school department.

The City Council's finance committee met for four hours on May 28 and for nearly two-and-a-half hours the following morning to review the proposed budget on a departmental basis. Councillors approved all but two departmental budgets during those sessions.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci asked that the review of the $52.55 million budget for health insurance be put on hold because he was concerned Quincy College might not be able to reimburse the city for the college's share of health care expenses, about $2 million.

In addition, the $191,543 budget for the Furnace Brook Golf Club lease was put on hold. The city is entering the final year of a 50-year agreement with the club, under which the city pays the club's property taxes. The city will take ownership of the land once the lease ends. Council President Nina Liang had proposed cutting the line item for the lease in the budget to $125,000, based on the club's tax bills in recent years. The vote was put on hold so councillors could receive additional information on the lease from the city's legal department.

The committee is slated to meet again June 15 to take up those two items.

Councillors made a pair of cuts totaling $68,000 during last week's committee hearings. Half was from the personnel services budget of the Park and Forestry Division and the other half was from the personnel services budget of the Public Buildings Department. Both cuts were made to correct an accounting error.

Among the budgets approved by the committee was the Quincy Public Schools budget: Koch had proposed allocating $111.19 million from the general fund to the school system budget in the new fiscal year, up from $110.21 this fiscal year. The school system's total budget proposal for FY21 is $117.39 million, including $5.2 million in Circuit Breaker money from the state and $1 million from the federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act.

The School Committee, not the City Council, will ultimately determine how the QPS budget is dispersed. School officials have proposed creating 13.5 new full-time equivalent positions, including 10.5 teachers, a new high school guidance staff member, and IT support staff member and a new central office administrator.

The second largest budget approved last week was the retirement and pension budget. That is set to increase from $29.76 million in the current fiscal year to $32.18 million in FY21.

The debt service budget, which covers long-term debt, will increase from $17.12 million to $20.03 million. The short-term debt budget is set to increase from $5.97 million to $6.27 million.

Also approved were the budgets for the Quincy Police and Fire Departments. The police budget is set to rise from $30.93 million to $31.45 million and the fire budget will increase from $26.82 million to $28.86 million. Three other budgets that fall under the umbrella of public safety – Inspectional Services ($1.82 million), Emergency Management ($191,000) and Animal Control ($130,000) – were likewise approved. Those three are level funded.

The Health Department's budget will increase from $1.16 million to $1.24 million. An additional health inspector will be funded out of the department's budget in FY21; Commissioner Ruth Jones said that inspector is already on staff and their salary had been paid for with a federal grant. Jones also said she was comfortable with her department's budget in light of the pandemic.

The Department of Public Works budget will decrease from $5.38 million to $5.23 million. The Engineering Department budget will decrease from $914,000 to $903,000 and the Drain Department budget will decrease from $1.69 million to $1.66 million. The city will spend more on waste disposal in the new fiscal year, with that budget going from $7.88 million to $8.16 million. The snow and ice removal budget will stay level funded at $2.72 million.

The budget for the Natural Resources Department is broken out into three divisions. The Cemetery Division's budget will increase from $988,000 to $1.02 million and the Park and Forestry Division will increase from $3.15 million to $3.22 million after the $34,000 cut, while the Recreation Division's budget will decrease from $803,000 to $679,000.

The budget for the Public Buildings Department is set to decrease from $6.3 million to $6.28 million after the $34,000 cut.

Other budgets approved last week include Information Technology, which will rise by about $300,000 to $3.71 million; that increase is because of an increase in a contractual line item. The Traffic, Parking, Alarm and Lighting budget will increase from $2.94 million to $2.99 million. The Thomas Crane Public Library budget will decrease from $3.51 million to $3.43 million.

The finance committee last week also approved the proposed sewer and water budgets, which are funded separately from the general fund. The sewer enterprise budget is $25.64 million and would include a 1.5 percent increase for ratepayers, Koch said previously. The proposed water enterprise fund budget is $18.59 million and would not include a rate increase.

stadium and keep families spread far enough apart to meet social distancing guidelines.

There are 280 members of North Quincy High School's graduating class, meaning up to 560 family members would be able to attend. The mayor said it would be feasible to accommodate all 560 inside the stadium.

Quincy High School's graduating class contains 380 students and there would not be enough space inside the stadium for all of them, Koch said.

"[It] makes it impossible to do it in one, unless you limited it to one per family, and I don't think that is fair," he said. "We talked about maybe bringing in other bleachers around the ends, but then you don't have the same vision and shot of the field and the kids that you would have on the home stands."

Koch said he and DeCristofaro have discussed the idea of having two separate ceremonies for Quincy High. The mayor said the two high school principals would also have a say in the plans.

"It's going to be the principals' calls on some of that stuff," Koch said. "We will be supportive, I will provide every resource from every city department, the secu-urity, the PPE – anything we need to do to get it off, we will provide it – but at the end of the day, the schools themselves have to come up with the comfort level."

Committee member Douglas Gutro said it was "heartbreaking" that Quincy High's graduates could be divided in to two ceremonies.

The guidelines from the state Department of Elementary and Secondary Education allow in-person ceremonies to take place no sooner than July 19, provided they are held outdoors and follow social distancing and other guidelines to protect the health of those in attendance. The ceremonies would only be allowed to take place starting July 19 if the public health data supports the continued reopening of the state.

The DESE guidelines would limit attendance to graduates and members of their immediate family only. Pre-registration would be required and only those who register would be allowed to attend. Children under the age of 5, older adults and those with vulnerable health conditions are discouraged from attending.

The ceremony would be required to be as brief as possible.

The DESE guidelines would also require that attendees who are not immediately family members sit six feet apart; immediate family members could sit next to each other. Graduates would also need to be spaced six feet apart.

Plans must also be in place to ensure orderly entrance and exit from the stadium. Communal gatherings would not be allowed before or after the ceremony. DeCristofaro said that means graduates would not be able to pose for photographs after the ceremony like they traditionally do.

Everyone in attendance would be required to wear masks, except those who cannot do so because of a medical condition. Those who speak at the ceremony would be allowed to remove their mask when addressing the audience.

The guidelines recommend graduates walk across the stage individually and adjust their tassels in lieu of receiving their diplomas. Diplomas could still be handed out in a safe way, however, such as placing it on a table for a graduate to pick up. Hugging and hand shaking would not be al-

Quincy High School's graduation was originally scheduled for 6 p.m. on June 8 with North Quincy High School's ceremony slated for the following evening. The school department will instead release senior tribute videos those nights to honor the graduating seniors.

The official graduation date for the seniors is now June 10. DeCristofaro is slated to announce the seniors from both schools have met the requirements to graduate at a school board meeting that evening.

Patrick McDermott Qualifies For Sheriff Democratic Primary

Patrick McDermott, a Democratic candidate for Norfolk County sheriff, announces he is officially on the ballot having collected over 1,400 nomination signatures.

McDermott turned in the required certified signatures and nomination papers to the Secretary of the Commonwealth's office, ensuring his place on the Democratic ballot Sept. 1.

McDermott said his vision for the Norfolk County sheriff is to expand the role, serving as the county's "chief public safety officer," making the office a central resource for all the communities in Norfolk County for more than just crime prevention.

"In times like these, we

have seen communities step up to provide services and information, but what is clearly lacking is a central, coordinated effort to share information, resources and services for the people of Norfolk County. I believe the Sheriff's office can fill that need and provide additional support necessary for communities and ensure the safety of everyone in Norfolk County," Patrick Mc-

Dermost said.

McDermott is presently Norfolk Register of Probate, a position in which he said he has seen wide praise for his clear and efficient management of the county's probate and family courts. As Register of Probate, McDermott works with communities across the county to help connect residents to services and facilitate the administration of justice.

"My work as Register of Probate has prepared me for the county-wide responsibilities of sheriff, and I look forward to continuing my commitment to the families of Norfolk County as sheriff," McDermott said.

The Democratic Primary for Norfolk County sheriff will take place Tuesday, Sept. 1st.

Sheriff Jerry McDermott's 'Are You Okay?' Program Gets Help For 2 Elderly Quincy Women

Two elderly women in need of medical attention on the mornings of May 15th and May 23rd were rescued by public safety personnel, thanks to a Norfolk County Sheriff's Office collaborative program run by Sheriff Jerry McDermott and Fallon Ambulance Service.

Each morning, 365 days a year, an "Are You OK?" officer places a phone call to every program participant. If the participant does not answer the phone or indicates in some other way that he or she is in need of medical attention, the officer takes quick action to get them help.

On May 15th the "Are You OK?" officer placed a call to a 96-year-old Quincy client. When the elderly woman did not answer her daily phone call, the officer notified the woman's granddaughter, who found her on the bathroom floor, unable to get up. Nine-1-1 was called and the woman was transported to an area hospital for evaluation.

The following week, an 85-year-old Quincy woman was also admitted to an area hospital after Sheriff Jerry McDermott's "Are You OK?" program summoned help to her home.

The elderly woman, did not answer her daily well-being check phone call from the "Are You OK?" officer on the morning of May 23. The officer called the Quincy Police and asked them to go to the woman's address to check on her. They found her lying on the floor, yelling for help. The elderly woman was transported by ambulance to the hospital where she was admitted for evaluation.

"Thanks to our collaborative efforts with Fallon Ambulance and Quincy Police, we were able to get these two women the help they desperately needed," said Sheriff Jerry McDermott. "These lifesaving stories highlight the importance of the RUOK program."

Sheriff Jerry McDermott added:

"During this very challenging time, we encourage our most vulnerable neighbors to sign up for this potentially life-saving program. If you have elderly loved ones that you feel should have this safety net, then please take the initiative on their behalf, and sign them up at 1-866-900-7865 (RUOK).

Online Grocery Shopping Now Available For SNAP Recipients In Massachusetts

The Baker-Polito Administration announces Massachusetts residents who receive Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits can purchase groceries online with electronic benefit transfer (EBT) cards through Amazon and Walmart.

Like using SNAP benefits to purchase food in a store, benefits can be used to buy SNAP-eligible foods online, including fresh produce, frozen foods, dairy and eggs, plant seeds and more. Then purchases can be delivered through Amazon and some Walmart locations. Several Walmart locations also offer curbside pickup. Visit <http://www.mass.gov/SNAPonline> for more information about this new purchasing option, including frequently asked questions and flyers.

"The administration has been working to use all tools available to address food insecurity exacerbated by this public health crisis," said COVID-19 Command Center Director and Secretary of Health and Human Services Marylou Sudders. "SNAP is one of the best tools available to fight hunger, putting money directly into the hands of our residents and local economy. This innovative option enables families across the Commonwealth to purchase food directly and safely."

"As the economic impact of the public health crisis continues, applications for SNAP benefits have increased upwards of 400%," said Department of Transitional Assistance Commissioner Amy Kershaw. "Throughout the crisis, the Department of Transitional Assistance has continued its work to help meet the needs of the Commonwealth's most vulnerable families, and with the launch of this new online purchasing option, we are seeing further equity brought to food purchasing options in Massachusetts."

The Department of Transitional Assistance (DTA) worked closely with the state's EBT vendor, Conduent, as well as the federally approved retailers Amazon and Walmart, to implement the program as quickly as possible. Since the start of the public health emergency, applications for SNAP benefits have increased upwards of 400%, resulting in more than 80,000 new households now receiving SNAP.

"Amazon remains committed to making food accessible through online shopping, offering all customers access to low prices, selection, and convenience," said Kristina Herrmann, Director of Underserved Populations at Amazon. "This is especially important as millions of Americans are being encouraged to continue practicing physical distancing. We continue to work closely with state officials and the USDA as the SNAP Online Purchasing Pilot grows to expand our capabilities in supporting under-served customers."

"We continue to be excited to be part of the USDA's pilot program and to be able to make our Pickup and Delivery services available to more and more people, regardless of their payment method. Now more than ever, customers are relying on our pickup and delivery services to give them access to quality, fresh groceries, and we believe that shouldn't be dictated by how you pay," said Molly Blakeman, Director of National Media Relations at Walmart.

SNAP benefits cannot be used to pay for fees, like delivery fees. Economic assistance program benefits received through DTA, Transitional Aid to Families with Dependent Children (TAFDC) and Emergency Aid to the Elderly, Disabled, and Children (EAEDC), cannot be used to purchase items online at this time.

In response to COVID-19, the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) allowed states to submit plans to participate in an online purchasing pilot program. Massachusetts submitted a waiver to participate in the pilot program on April 24, and received federal approval on May 20. The USDA approves all retailers for participation in this program. Interested retailers can visit: www.FNS.USDA.gov/SNAP.

DTA assists and empowers low-income individuals and families to meet their basic needs, improve their quality of life, and achieve long term economic self-sufficiency. DTA serves one in nine residents of the Commonwealth with direct economic assistance and food assistance, as well as workforce training opportunities.

For more information related to DTA in light of COVID-19, visit <https://www.mass.gov/DTA/COVID-19>.

$1,000 Offered For Youth-Led Projects On Climate Change Education

Applications are being sought for the Civic Education Alliance (CEA) Funding for Youth-Led Climate Projects.

The program offers $1,000 for high school-age applicants in Quincy to create and realize educational or community outreach projects about the climate crisis. It will support projects envisioned, developed and carried out by students who are passionate about this issue and want to make a lasting impact, particularly in the immigrant communities of Quincy.

Projects should educate and build community in Quincy and the surrounding areas; students may work independently, in pairs, or in small groups to create their project. Each individual or team will receive up to $1000.00 to cover the expenses of carrying out the approved projects. Projects will be reviewed as soon as they are submitted and can start as soon as they are approved.

Projects may include partnerships with other schools or local organizations. They may use local businesses, the arts, athletics, cultural celebrations, or other venues, as long as the focus is on education about environmental justice issues and building community.

Winners will be mentored and assisted to actualize their vision by volunteer activists from local climate organizations such as Mothers Out Front, which is a sponsoring organization, Quincy Climate Action Network, Extinction Rebellion, Fore River Residents Against the Compressor Station, and/or 350 MA.

The CEA was founded in 2016 to facilitate communication between the Quincy city government, the wider Quincy community, and the Quincy Chinese community. The Funding for Youth-Led Climate Projects in Environmental Education and Outreach Program has the goal of extending this outreach to all cultural groups in Quincy.

Applications should be sent by pdf to: amyhtai@gmail.com.

Manage Mosquitoes For A Safer, More Enjoyable Summer

By MELINDA MYERS

Don't let the buzz of mosquitoes keep you indoors. Most mosquitoes are a nuisance, causing rashes and itching but some species can transmit diseases that can make you sick. Understanding how they breed and spread disease can help you gain the upper hand in the battle against these pesky insects.

Mosquitoes serve as a carrier (vector) in the spread of certain diseases. It starts when they feed on an animal infected with heartworms or an animal or person with West Nile, Saint Louis Encephalitis, Zika or other mosquito-vectored disease. The young heartworm or virus is taken in with the mosquito's blood meal. The heartworm larvae or virus is then transmitted to other organisms when the mosquito feeds on them.

Always take precautions when traveling to other regions. Find out about the health risks of the area and come prepared. Consult with your doctor and be sure to pack repellent and the appropriate clothing.

At home, start by eliminating mosquito breeding grounds. These insects need standing water to reproduce. The larvae hatch and feed on tiny organisms in the water. Once they morph into adults, they leave the water and look for animals and people to dine upon.

Get rid of any standing water to eliminate breeding grounds in your landscape. Clean clogged gutters where water can collect and mosquitoes can breed. Empty water that collects in any items left outside. Change the water in your birdbath at least once a week or anytime you water your container gardens.

Toss an organic mosquito control, like Mosquito Dunks and Mosquito Bits (SummitResponsibleSolutions.com), into your rain barrel, pond or other water feature. Mosquito Bits quickly knock down the mosquito larval population, while Mosquito Dunks provide 30 days of mosquito control. The active ingredient is Bacillus thuringiensis israelensis, a naturally occurring soil bacterium that kills the mosquito larvae but is safe for children, fish, pets, beneficial insects and wildlife.

Invite the songbirds into your backyard with birdhouses, birdbaths and feeders. Most of them feed on insects, including mosquitoes and garden pests, while adding color, motion and beauty to your landscape.

Keep the garden weeded. Mosquitoes rest in shrubs, trees and weeds during the day. Removing weeds and managing neglected garden spaces will make your landscape less inviting to these pests.

Further protect yourself by wearing light colored clothing, long sleeves and long pants when enjoying the outdoors. Apply EPA-approved repellents as directed on the label.

Use a fan when sitting on the porch or even working in the garden. The gentle breeze helps keep the weak-flying mosquitoes away.

Then add a bit of ambience to your next party by lighting a few citronella candles. Citronella oil and the scented candles do have some mosquito-repelling properties. Scatter lots of candles throughout the party and within a few feet of your guests for some short-term relief.

And be sure to keep mosquitoes out of your house. Repair windows and screens that may be providing easy access into your home.

Taking a few precautions will help you manage these pests so you can enjoy the outdoor summer activities you love.

Downtown Construction Activities

Proposed work activities for the week of May 31st, 2020

- Both the inbound and outbound lanes at Dennis Ryan Parkway will be open this week. The sidewalk in front of the courthouse remains open, while the sidewalk on the opposite side is still being constructed. In the following week, the contractor will be working in the intersection of Revere Rd and Dennis Ryan Parkway performing trench repairs. In addition, the contractor will continue pouring sidewalks on the outbound lane side.
- Construction continues on the north and south foundation walls at the General's Bridge project with form work and installation of the steel reinforcement. The demolition of the old Commonwealth building continues this week with the crew removing the remaining south sections.
- Roof abatement is scheduled for the following week at the Community Dentist of Quincy building. The work that will be performed is needed to provide access to the required structural modifications on the interior wall. This wall will become an exterior wall following the demolishing of the adjacent buildings. The demolition of the adjacent buildings is still scheduled to begin following the completion of the structural modifications.

BBB Scam Alert: Top Tricks Used To Scam Older Adults

By BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

No matter your age, no one is immune to scams. But older adults report higher median losses. Why is that?

Scammers often target this group with schemes, such as investment fraud and romance scams, where victims lose thousands of dollars. Watch out for these tricks and techniques often used to scam older adults.

Why Older Adults?

According to the 2019 BBB Scam Tracker Risk Report, fraud susceptibility decreases as you get older, but dollar loss actually increases with age. Adults over age 65 reported a median loss of $350. That's a significant increase from the average $100 lost by people aged 18-24.

This increase can be attributed to the types of scams aimed at older adults. According to the report, older people are more likely to be targeted by travel schemes, home improvement cons, romance scams, and investment fraud. Scammers target older adults because they are perceived as easier to persuade and generally have access to greater financial resources. Retired people are more likely to be at home to answer the door or telephone.

In addition, research conducted by the BBB Institute, FINRA Investor Education Foundation, and the Stanford Center on Longevity found another reason why older adults may fall victim to scams: loneliness made people more likely to engage with and lose money to scammers. This was especially true when the person felt he or she lacked companionship and was isolated from loved ones. Single, divorced, and widowed people were also at higher risk, since many felt they didn't have a companion to discuss their experiences and doubts with.

Common Scams

And Tips To Spot Them
BBB recommends the following precautions to avoid becoming a victim:

Watch out for phone fraud. The Federal Trade Commission reports that fraudulent telemarketers often direct their calls at older adults. Scammers claim to be calling in an official capacity as a government agent or bank employee. They may sound friendly and courteous or aggressive and threatening. They may even have a caller ID to match their claims.

However, caller IDs can be easily spoofed and government agencies DON'T make unsolicited calls. It is vital to cultivate a healthy distrust for unsolicited callers and avoid sharing personal information. Never feel pressured to act. When in doubt, hang up the phone and call the official source to verify unexpected or unusual claims. You can also reduce the number of unsolicited calls you receive by registering your phone number with the National Do-Not-Call registry at 1-888-382-1222 or Donotcall.gov.

Know the red flags.

Most scammers use common tactics to get your money or personal information. Keep an eye out for the following too-good-to-be-true claims:

- "Free," "low cost," or "buy one, get one" deal
- Request for unusual payment types (i.e. prepaid debit cards or wired funds)

- Claims that you only pay postage or administrative fees

- Pressure to act now and/or aggressive tones

- Deals that must be secured with a credit card or bank account information

- Sure-fire investment opportunities

- Charities that send 100% of your donation directly to the victims

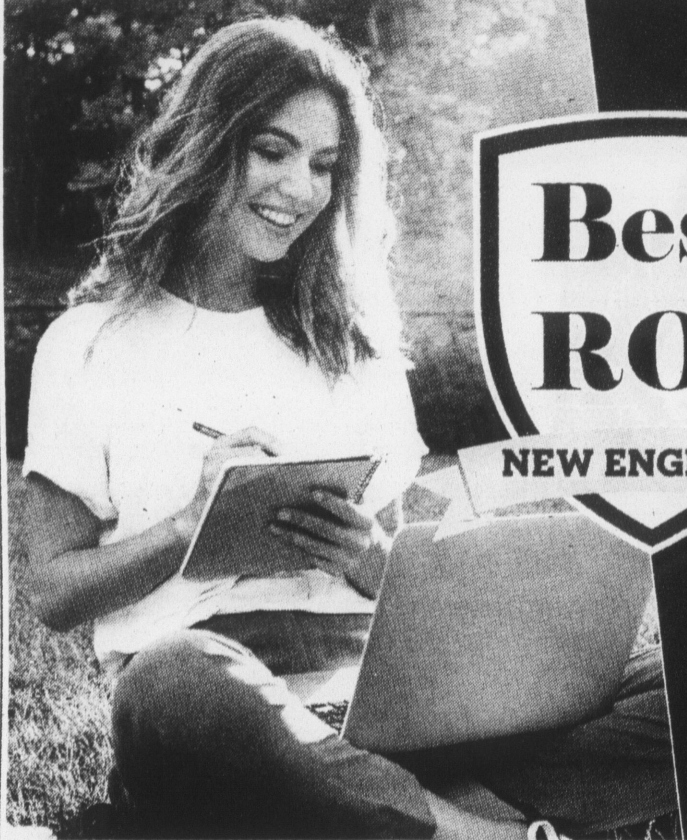

Only hire trustworthy, licensed contractors. Older adults often need extra help around the house and may hire someone to complete a renovation project and landscape work. However, never hire someone who just shows up at your door and don't let them in or around your home for "inspections. Instead, if you need repair work, use BBB.org to search for accredited businesses and ask friends and family for recommendations. Then, research the companies, keeping a close eye on past reviews or complaints. Always make sure the contractor or company is properly licensed and never pay in full up front. Read BBB's Tips on Hiring a Contractor.

Strange phone call?

Might be an emergency scam: Older adults can be susceptible to emergency scams and other ploys because they aren't familiar with the information about themselves and their family available online. This trick begins with a phone call from someone posing as your grandchild, niece or nephew, or other young family member. Scammers research victims using social media and often know family names, travel plans, and other details. The phony grandchild will claim to be out of town and in an emergency situation - anything from a car accident to wrongful arrest. The scam artist will urge you to send money ASAP and to not tell Mom or Dad. Read more about emergency scams.

Watch out for Medicare fraud: Here is one scam that's aimed right at older Americans: free medical equipment. Medicare fraud has cost the American public more than $60 billion, and a large part of that is fraud around "durable medical equipment," such as knee braces or walkers. By making repeated calls, scammers badger Medicare recipients into taking "free" medical equipment. Then, they bill Medicare for it. By law, no one is allowed to make unsolicited calls to consumers about durable medical equipment. If you get such a call, just hang up.

Div. 1 Hoopster Nicole Jorgensen Has Big Plans

QHS, URI Basketball Standout Now Setting Sights On Professional Career

By LIAM GAMBON

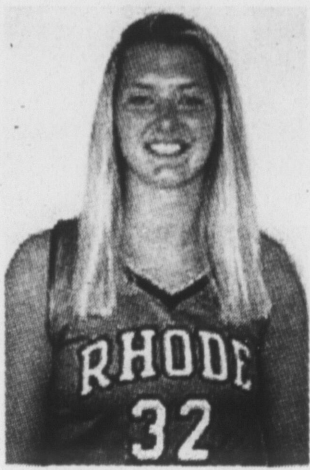

Nicole Jorgensen has run the basketball floor since the sixth grade but enjoyed one of her best seasons in her senior year of college.

The Quincy native played out her final season of Division I Basketball at the University of Rhode Island this year. The difference this time around from the previous three years was that she played under a different head coach.

Tammi Reiss, a former All-American at the University of Virginia, who also played in the WNBA, took over the head coaching job and Jorgensen saw immediate results in her game.

She recorded 16.0 points per game and 8.3 rebounds per game, both career highs.

"Honestly, she just opened my eyes to how much potential I had and that if I took it seriously

she plans to play professionally in either Spain, Greece, Poland, Portugal, Italy, Israel or Turkey.

The WNBA still of course remains at the top of her plans.

But well before all of this, the sport of basketball began for her 11 years ago. Her friends wanted her to play because she was so tall.

Standing at 6-feet 5-inches now, Jorgensen has always been one of the tallest on the court throughout her life and has used it to dominant.

During her time with the Quincy High Presidents, Jorgensen was a four-time Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic, four-time Patriot League All-Star, two-time Patriot League MVP and a two-year captain. In her senior year, she averaged 22 points, 16.7 rebounds and 4.0 blocked shots per game.

enough, I could make it into a career," Jorgensen said.

Now, she is looking to follow in her coach's footsteps, as she is currently signed to Wasserman Agency, an agency that represents countless professional athletes.

But that will have to wait as she went undrafted in the 2020 WNBA Draft. It still won't stop her though, as She led Quincy to a league championship that year and also set the school's single-season records for points (507) and rebounds (384). She scored 1,274 points in her career and set a Quincy record with 1,159 career rebounds. She was the first player in city history to record 28 rebounds in a single game and owns the school's records for season, career and single-game blocked shots.

She was the first and only Quincy basketball player to record 1,000 points and 1,000 rebounds in their high school career.

After muscling a rebound and laying in her 1,000th point in the packed Quincy High gym, Jorgensen's teammates ran straight to her and celebrated with hugs. One of those teammates in the mix was Alyssa Camara, who played basketball with Jorgensen even before high school.

"The energy, moment and love in that game was incredible," Camara said. "Being a part of that, celebrating Nicole's accomplishment made us all work harder."

"I would say high school was fun overall. I found my love for the game and I had an amazing coach and man to look up to in Jay Jerahian," Jorgensen said. "He taught me everything that I know and I wouldn't be where I am today without him and his family."

Towards the end of high school, she received a scholarship to play Division II basketball at Southern Connecticut until it fell through when the coaches left the program. But they were close to the coaches at URI and told them about the tall center.

"I went on my official visit and I loved the girls and what the school had to offer me athletically and academically," Jorgensen said. "It was a dream come true to be recruited by a DI school."

Through four years at URI, Jorgensen improved her points per game from 7.0 to 16.0 and her rebounds per game from 5.2 to 8.3.

At the beginning of her senior year, she was named to the Atlantic 10 Preseason Third Team but went and finished the year on the First Team and was named the best center in the conference.

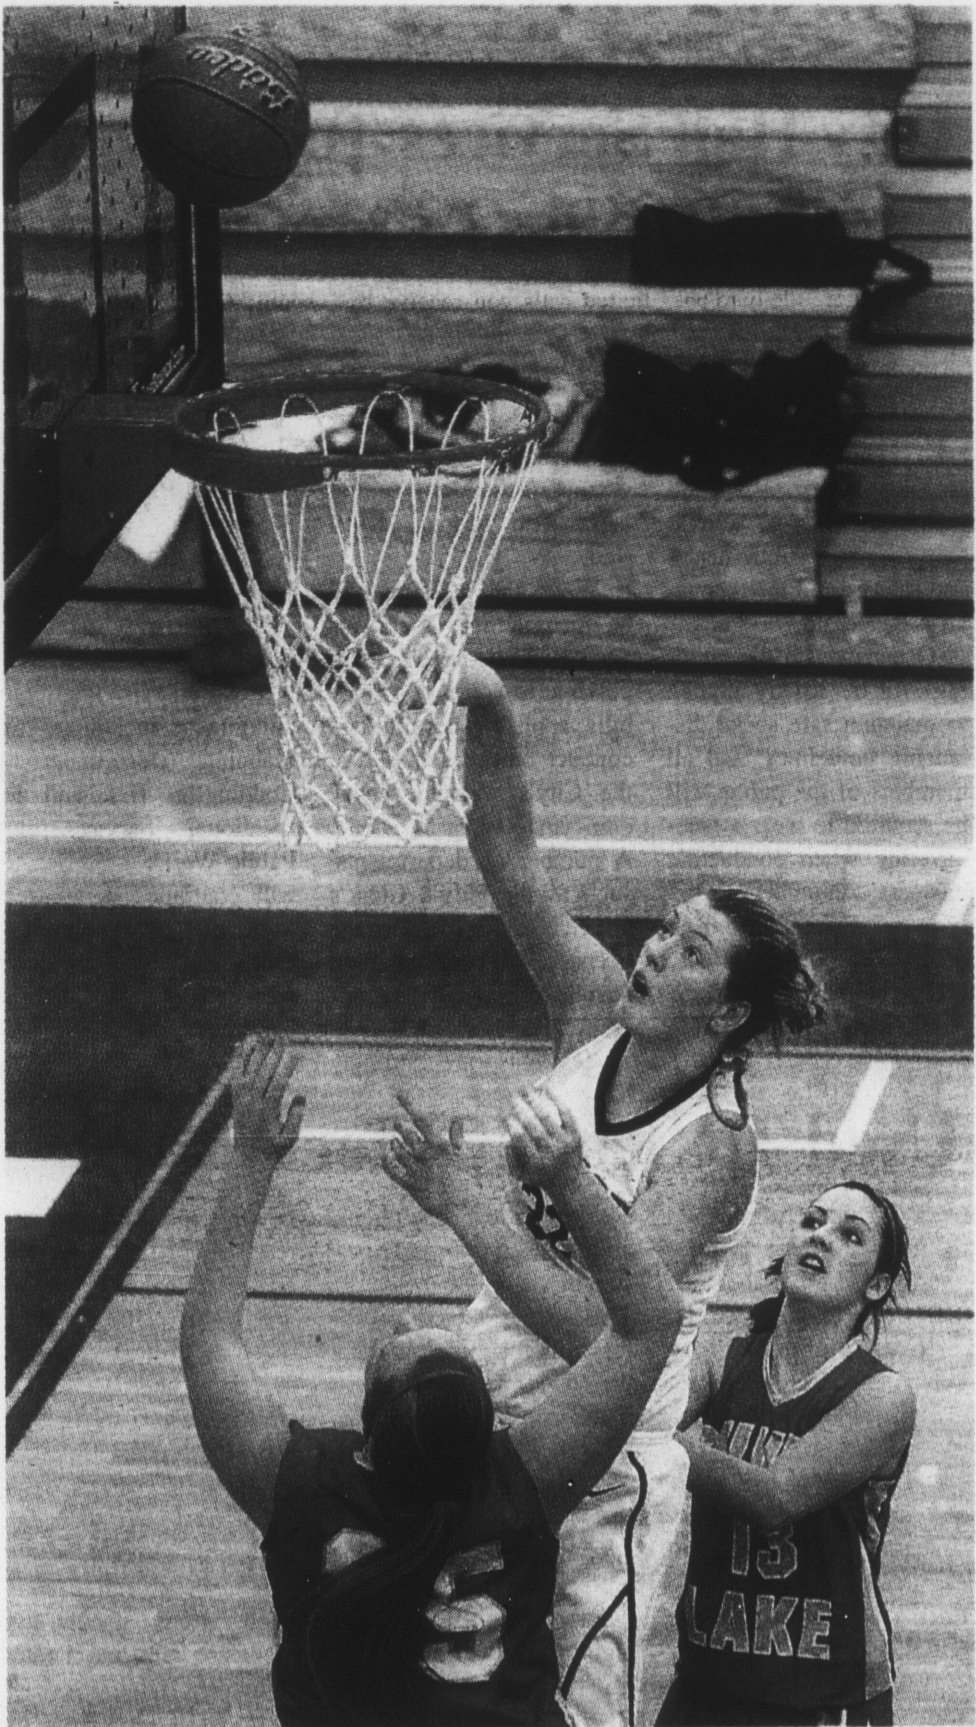

Her 16.0 points per game stood for third in the Atlantic 10 and the 8.3 rebounds per game were second. She finished second in field goal percentage as she shot 50.9%, and had the most points in a game for the conference when she scored 31 in March.

"Nothing came easy," Jorgensen said. "I needed to work for everything I got and I had a lot of people to prove wrong at the beginning of this season when I was nominated to the third team."

At the end of her career with URI, she became just the 22nd player in program history to reach 1,000 career points and finished her career sixth-best all-time with 1,426. She also became just the fifth player in URI history to surpass 1,000 points and 800 rebounds, with her 811 rebounds standing for fifth-best all-time.

"Playing with a teammate that has had the ability to play at the Division I level is incredible. She has come so far from high school, physically, mentally and emotionally, to get her where she is. She recognized her talent and ran with it," Camara said. "It is truly incredible knowing I grew up playing with such an inspiring lifelong teammate."

NICOLE JORGENSEN scores two points against Silver Lake during her playing days with the Quincy High School Presidents. She is the first and only Quincy basketball player to record 1,000 points and 1,000 rebounds in their high school career. She went on to play four years of Div. 1 basketball at the University of Rhode Island and now aims to play professionally.

Second Phase Of Re-Opening Could Start Next Week

By SCOTT JACKSON

Gov. Charlie Baker is set to announce on Friday when the second phase of his plan to re-open Massachusetts businesses that have been closed amid the coronavirus pandemic begins.

The second phase – which will include restaurants, retailers, lodging, childcare facilities and camps, among others – could commence as soon as June 8, state officials said. Public health data collected this week will determine when the second phase starts.

Baker and Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito on May 29 announced new rules restaurants and lodgings will have to follow when they re-open as part of phase two. The state announced new rules for retailers, childcare facilities, day camps and other youth programs – such as those run by municipalities – on Monday.

Customers will be allowed to eat on premises at restaurants – which have been limited to delivery and takeout since March – once the second phase begins. Seating will be limited to outdoor sections at first, but customers could be allowed to sit indoors later in the second phase.

On Monday, Baker issued an executive order that, in part, is meant to streamline the approval process for restaurants seeking to offer outdoor dining. Quincy restaurants seeking to create or expand an outdoor dining area can apply online to do so at quincyma.gov.

Customers will be required to wear masks when they enter and exit restaurants, and when they move around within it, but they can remove the masks while they are sitting. Tables must be spaced six feet apart and parties will be limited to six people. No seating will be allowed at bars during the second phase, but restaurants will be allowed to rearrange those spaces to accommodate more tables.

Lodgings – such as hotels, motels, bed and breakfasts, and short-term rentals like Airbnb – will be allowed to expand operations in the second phase. Event spaces – including ballrooms, functions rooms and meeting rooms – must remain closed, however, and lodgings will not be able to host gatherings such as weddings or business conferences.

On-site restaurants, pools, gyms, spas, golf courses, and other amenities co-located with the lodging operation may operate only as these categories are authorized to operate elsewhere in the state and subject to the COVID-19 safety rules that apply to free-standing facilities of the same sort.

In addition, operators must inform guests at both reservation and check-in about the state's policy urging travelers to self-quarantine for 14 days when arriving in Massachusetts from out of state.

Retailers – which were allowed to offer curbside pickup and delivery starting in phase one – will be allowed to let customers back inside during phase two. The state's guidance will require stores to limit occupancy to eight persons, including staff, per 1,000 square feet of accessible indoor space or 40 percent of the retailer's maximum permitted occupancy, whichever is greater.

Grocery stores and retail stores with pharmacy services must provide at least one hour of dedicated time for adults 60 years of age and older, while all stores are encouraged to offer exclusive hours or other accommodations for high-risk populations. For staffing, stores should adjust workplace hours and shifts, including leveraging staggered arrival / departure, to minimize contact across workers and to allow for on-going and off-hour sanitation and cleaning. Stores should also conduct frequent disinfecting of heavy transit areas and high-touch surfaces.

Operators of enclosed shopping malls and other indoor, multi-tenant retail spaces must monitor customer and worker entries and exits to common areas and limit occupancy of common areas at all times to 40 percent of maximum permitted occupancy levels. Mall amenities like seating in food courts, children's play areas, and arcades must remain closed, while mall food vendors and restaurants may only provide take-out or delivery service.

The Department of Early Education and Care on Monday announced guidelines that will allow childcare facilities, recreational camps, and municipal or recreational youth programs to re-open as part of phase two. Residential camps and other overnight stays will not be allowed to open until the third phase, however.

Prior to reopening, all programs must develop plans for daily health screenings and ways to identify children and staff who are sick, symptomatic, or who become exposed to coronavirus. Programs must also have a plan in place to handle possible closings, staff absences, and gaps in child attendance, as well as determine how to communicate with staff, parents, local boards of health and others.

Programs must screen all staff and children with a temperature check, before they are permitted to enter the child care space. Programs must establish one entry point to ensure no one is allowed in the building until they pass a health screening. Parents must wear masks or face coverings when picking up and dropping off their child on a staggered schedule and will be met at the door by staff.

Children over the age of 2 will be encouraged to wear face masks, at the discretion of parents or guardians, if they can safely wear, remove, and handle masks. Masks do not need to be worn outdoors if children are six feet apart.

Staff members are encouraged to wear masks or cloth face coverings at all times when caring for children and interacting with parents and families. If possible, the department recommends staff wear transparent masks to enable children to see facial expressions, which is important for child development.

Limited youth and adult amateur sports activities and programs will also be allowed to resume as part of phase two. Contact, games and scrimmages are not allowed. Indoor facilities will be limited to youth programs.

The state's professional sports teams were allowed to begin practicing immediately effective Monday, provided they follow their respective league's rules for doing so. Inter-team games are not yet allowed, and team facilities must remain closed to the public.

Other businesses allowed to re-open in phase two include various personal services, such as photography, window washers, individual tutoring, home cleaning, massage parlors and nail salons, among others.

Non-athletic instructional classes in arts, education and life skills for youths under the age of 18 is also permitted in groups of fewer than 10. Driving and flight schools can also re-open. Other certain schools can also re-open on a limited other basis.

Outdoor historical spaces may also re-open during the second phase. Gatherings, functions and guided tours are not allowed.

Public libraries can re-open as part of the second phase.

Funeral homes will be allowed to increase their capacity to permit 40 percent occupancy for one service at a time.

Various outdoor recreational facilities can open as part of phase two, including golf facilities like driving ranges. Pools, playgrounds, spray decks, mini golf, go karts, batting cages, climbing walls and rope courses can also re-open.

The governor's executive order on Monday also provided an updated list of businesses that can re-open in phase three. The list, which is subject to change, includes museums, indoor historic spaces, aquariums, casino gaming floors, outdoor and indoor theaters and performance spaces of moderate capacity, sightseeing tours like harbor cruises and bus tours, gyms and fitness centers, and indoor recreational facilities.

Large venues; amusement parks; bars, beer gardens, breweries, wineries and distilleries that do not offer food; road races, street festivals and parades would not be allowed until phase four.

City Hall Services To Re-Open To Public On Monday

Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday that City Hall will re-open for public business on Monday, June 8, with residents encouraged to continue conducting business online or via appointment when possible to help maintain public health and safety amid the coronavirus pandemic.

Occupancy in the building will be strictly limited to maintain safe social distancing guidelines, and all members of the public will be required to wear a face-covering when conducting business. A number of safety improvements have been made to the interior of City Hall to help protect both the public and employees from potential exposure.

"The public health data is heading in the right direction in Quincy and the Commonwealth, and providing the public access to its government is an important symbol of gradually getting us back to normal," Koch said.

While the building will be open, the mayor encouraged residents to the extent possible to continue to pay bills, apply for permits and conduct other business via the City's website, www.quincyma.gov, or by phone. A number of departments, such as the City's Clerk's Office issuance of marriage licenses, will continue to do business primarily by appointment.

Residents are strongly encouraged to call ahead to individual departments:

City Clerk: 617-376-1130

Assessors Office: 617-376-1170

Human Resources: 617-376-1066

Purchasing: 617-376-1074

Treasurer/Collector: 617-376-1095

Business in other city buildings, including the Planning Department at Coddington Hall and Inspectional Services and Public Works at 55 Sea St. will continue operating as status quo by appointment. Call ahead or visit the city's website for services in those buildings.

Do your research before making an investment: Investment cons often target older adults because of their greater financial resources. They frequently prey on longstanding group connections – such as through a religious organization or an ethnic group – where members trust each other. Even if you are a savvy investor, you can still fall victim to this scam. Con artists are masters of persuasion, and they often learn the weaknesses of their targets and tailor their pitches accordingly.

Think before you click.

Older adult may be less comfortable with technology making them more vulnerable to phishing schemes and hacking. Links found in unsolicited emails or messages on social media can be especially dangerous. They may look like they lead to an official website, but they will download malware onto your computer that gives scammers access to your sensitive information. Protect yourself by only clicking on links that come from people you know and trust and by keeping your antivirus software up to date.

Be on guard for "sweet-heart" swindles. Older adults who are widowed or divorced are frequent targets of romance scams. If you meet someone online who shows romantic interest in you, don't be too quick to trust them. These scams can often take months to develop to the point where money changes hands. Con artists create compelling backstories, and full-fledged identities, then trick you into falling for someone who doesn't even exist. A common romance scam involves charming the victim and then asking for money for medical expenses, family concerns, or other reasons that pull at the heartstrings.

Once the con artist receives the funds, they disappear for good. Read more about romance scams.

Reach out to someone you trust. Scammers want victims to feel isolated. Don't hesitate to contact a friend, family member, or organization you trust for advice. A second opinion can greatly reduce your risk. Read more about phishing scams.

Take time to research your purchases. Scammers often make unsolicited offers to older adults for medical supplies, anti-aging products, and vitamins and supplements. They might contact you over the phone, as a door-to-door salesperson, or via online messages. They make incredible offers with the goal of getting their hands on your personal information or money. Before you agree to purchase the next miracle product that comes your way, take a few minutes to research the company to make sure their products and offers are legitimate. Read about free trial offer scams.

Guard your personal information carefully. Never share your personal information with a stranger on the phone, in an email, on a social media network, or otherwise. Keep careful records of your transactions by reviewing your bank and credit card statements regularly. Check them for accuracy and then shred any documents that include personal information before throwing them away.

If you or a loved one has been the victim of a scam that targets older adults, report it at BBB.org/ScamTracker.

Quincy Court Could Use City Facilities

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors want the Quincy Health Department to determine if any municipal facilities, including their own council chamber, could be utilized by the Quincy District Court amid the COVID-19 pandemic.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian

Palmucci introduced a resolution to that effect Monday night. Councillors approved the resolution by voice vote.

The state's Supreme Judicial Court has ordered all courthouses closed to the public except for emergencies through at least July 1.

The courts can conduct certain business remotely until that time. Jury trials will not resume until at least Sept. 8.

Palmucci's resolution states that resuming business inside the Quincy District Court could be difficult given space limitations inside the building. The resolution asks that the Health Department determine if the court could use municipal facilities, such as the council chamber inside Old City Hall, if necessary.

Palmucci, an attorney, said he does little business inside Quincy District Court, but knows courthouses statewide could have problems re-opening to the public.

"All across the commonwealth there is quite a problem with court being able to function properly given the COVID-19 public safety measures that need to be in place," he said. "Quincy District Court, if anyone has ever been in there, it is really a small, cramped building with a lot of people in it on a regular basis."

"Someone suggested to me that there may be some city property that could be utilized in a non-intrusive way...by the Quincy District either in the short term to get things back on track or in the long term."

Raymond F. Gillis, 86

Raymond Francis Gillis, age 86, formerly of Scituate, died May 20 following complications from dementia. Mr. Gillis was born and raised in North Quincy before moving to the South Shore after serving in the U.S. Army and marrying the former Charlotte Ann (Bunny) Kelley.

RAYMOND F. GILLIS

Born to Catherine (MacLellan) and Duncan Angus Gillis as the seventh of ten children, three girls and seven boys, he was a happy person who enjoyed socializing as much as playing varsity basketball for North Quincy High School. Later in life this joy de vivre translated to a career in sales, primarily in the HVAC and building products industry. Until he fell ill, Mr. Gillis continued to enjoy helping people including his family, friends and neighbors as well as those less fortunate by volunteering at the Pine Street Inn, a homeless shelter in Boston.

Born on Dec. 27, 1933, Mr. Gillis' early years were largely impacted by World War II. One of his earliest memories was of the day his mother was notified that his eldest brother, John, a U.S. Army ranger, was killed in action in Italy. This helped instill a lifelong belief in the importance of serving one's country that he passed on to his own family. Following high school, Mr. Gillis served in the U.S. Army defending the eastern seaboard from potential Soviet attacks at one of the famous Nike missile sites.

Soon after he left the army, Mr. Gillis married his longtime sweetheart Bunny and moved to Braintree before finally settling in Scituate where he would remain for the next fifty-seven years until Bunny's passing. His own children, Duncan Angus 2d and Raymond Kelley, were born a few years later and proudly raised on the "Irish Riviera." While Mr. Gillis spent his weekdays traveling around New England meeting with customers, his weekends were wholly committed to raising his sons and caring for the one and only love of his life, Bunny. He could be both seen and heard at most hockey rinks on the South Shore and throughout greater Boston. As his sons moved into their high school years, Mr. Gillis was a frequent visitor to both Thayer Academy and Archbishop Williams High School watching his boys play their various sports.

Following his retirement, Mr. Gillis cared for his mother-in-law, his ailing wife and the homeless in Boston. As his grandchildren arrived, he dedicated his time to taking care of Bridget and Michael (Gillis) during their parents' workday and visiting Ian and Sean (Gillis) as they moved around the country.

Mr. Gillis is survived by his sons Duncan and Raymond, his daughters-in-law Morgen and Josephine, his grandchildren Ian, Sean, Bridget and Michael and most recently his great grandson Wesley Maximus Gillis. Of his nine siblings, he is survived by his sister Dorothy of Vermont, his older brother George of Virginia and younger brother David of California.

His life will be celebrated at a graveside ceremony at Mount Wollaston Cemetery in Quincy at a later date.

Join the JOY Movement

Saint John the Baptist - Saint Joseph Collaborative invites all parishioners to make JOY the center of their Christin lives - Jesus - Others - Yourself - by sacrificially giving your time, talent and treasure to make the city and the world a better place.

The JOY Movement will hold a town hall meeting Thursday, June 11 at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. featuring a live chat with Fr. Matt Williams on the youtube channel.

To register for the JOY town meeting email StJSCares@gmail.com.

According to organizers of the town meeting, there are many forces mitigating against our JOY: there is an assault against peace and joy in the world, people who are unemployed and struggling financially, people who are struggling with isolation, loneliness, depression and fear, etc., long for the sacraments but unable to leave their homes. Parishioners who have lost faith in God and/or the church, who are suffering from an illness who have family members who are very sick and cannot accompany them due to COVID- restrictions; who have lost a loved one during the past two months and have not been able to have a funeral Mass; and people who are working on the front lines of the healthcare and emergency response systems who are exhausted and having a hard time.

For our parishes, we have been blessed with tremendous funding for our food pantries and we have worked diligently to minister and accompany our parishioners as best as we can given this dynamic.

"Weeping may last for the night, but joy comes with the morning" (Ps 30:5).

$10 Billion For CDFIs To Participate In The Paycheck Protection Program

The U.S. Small Business Administration, in consultation with the U.S. Treasury Department, announces that it is setting aside $10 billion of Round 2 funding for the Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) to be lent exclusively by Community Development Financial Institutions (CDFIs). CDFIs work to expand economic opportunity in low-income communities by providing access to financial products and services for local residents and businesses. These dedicated funds will further ensure that the PPP reaches all communities in need of relief during the COVID-19 pandemic.

"The forgivable loan program, PPP, is dedicated to providing emergency capital to sustain our nation's small businesses, the drivers of our economy, and retain their employees," said SBA Administrator Jovita Carranza. "CDFIs provide critically important capital and technical assistance to small businesses from rural, minority and other underserved communities, especially during this economically challenging time."

"The PPP has helped over 50 million American workers stay connected to their jobs and over 4 million small businesses get much-needed relief," said Treasury Secretary Steven T. Mnuchin. "We have received bipartisan support for dedicating these funds for CDFIs to ensure that traditionally underserved communities have every opportunity to emerge from the pandemic stronger than before."

As of May 23, CDFIs have approved more than $7 billion ($3.2 billion in Round 2) in PPP loans. The additional $6.8 billion will ensure that entrepreneurs and small business owners in all communities have easy access to the financial system, and that they receive much-needed capital to maintain their workforces.

The Paycheck Protection Program was created by the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (CARES Act) and provides forgivable loans to small businesses affected by the COVID-19 pandemic to keep their employees on the payroll. To date, more than 4.4 million loans have been approved for over $510 billion for small businesses across America.

Census Bureau To Deliver 2020 Census Questionnaires In Massachusetts

The U.S. Census Bureau, in coordination with federal, state, and local health officials, has begun dropping off 2020 Census questionnaire packets at front doors in Massachusetts.

This is done in areas where the majority of households do not receive mail at their physical address.

The Census Bureau began hand-delivering census materials on March 15 but suspended all fieldwork for this operation on March 18 due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Temporary field staff have been trained to observe all social distancing protocols and will wear official government-provided personal protective equipment for their safety and the safety of the public. This operation is contactless and follows the most current federal health and safety guidelines.

The health and safety of Census Bureau staff and the public is always a top priority.

The Census Bureau will deliver 2020 Census invitations and paper questionnaires at the front doors of roughly 5.1 million state-side households and 69,300 households in Massachusetts. This operation is crucial to ensure a complete and accurate count of all communities, which helps guide hundreds of billions of dollars in public and private sector spending per year.

People are strongly encouraged to respond promptly to the 2020 Census using the ID number included in the questionnaire packet. Responding with a census ID or the paper questionnaire helps ensure the best count of their community. People can respond online, by phone or by using the paper form in the packet.

For more information, visit the 2020 Census COVID-19 operational adjustments page.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Still operating under a full head of self-esteem makes you want to tackle a matter you had shied away from. OK. But be sure to arm yourself with facts before you make a move.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) That smart move you recently made caught the attention of a lot of people, including some with financial deals to offer. Use your Taurus wariness to check them out thoroughly.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Shyness might keep you from asking for more information on a potentially important matter. But your curiosity grows stronger by midweek and gives you the impetus for data-gathering.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Taking on too many tasks may not be the wise thing to do at this time. You might overspend both your physical and emotional energy reserves, and have to miss out on some upcoming events.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Try to keep your spending at an affordable level. Splurging now -- especially on credit -- could create a problem if your finances are too low for you to take advantage of a possible opportunity.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might not approve of a colleague's behavior during much of the week. But don't play the judgmental Virgo card here. As always, check the facts before you assume the worst.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Coping with an old issue that has suddenly re-emerged could take a big toll on your emotional energies. Decide whether you really want to pursue the possibilities here.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) For all your skill in keeping your secrets safe, you could be unwittingly letting one slip out by the way you're behaving in that new relationship. Are congratulations soon to be in order?

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Good old-fashioned horse sense could help you get around those who unknowingly or deliberately put obstacles in your way. Ignore the confusion and follow your own lead.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A puzzling attitude change in a colleague from friendly to chilly might stem from a long-hidden resentment suddenly bubbling up. An open and honest talk should resolve the problem.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This week, many ever-generous Aquarians might find themselves feeling an acquisitive urge. If so, indulge it. You've earned the right to treat yourself to wonderful things.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Expect to get a lot of advice on how to go about implementing your plans. But once you've sorted it all out, you'll probably find that, once again, your way will be the best way.

BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy the quiet times of your life, but when you're in the mood, you can throw a party everyone will want to go to. (c) 2020 King Features Synd., Inc.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Tom Cruise's fans always thought he was out of this world. So Tom has decided to live up to that expectation by joining forces with Elon Musk and his SpaceX on an action/adventure project with NASA that'll actually shoot in outer space and on the space station. Shooting will begin after he's completed work on "Mission: Impossible 7," due Nov. 19, 2021.

It was unusual casting when Mary Poppins met The Rock in "Jungle Cruise," but they must have really hit it off because Emily Blunt and Dwayne Johnson will now star in a second film together, "Ball and Chain." They'll play a bickering couple who acquire superpowers after a meteor passes near them. The catch is that their powers only work if they work together. The script is based on a 1999 comic book (what else), and the film will probably land at Netflix.

Before this year's Oscars, people didn't know who Taika Waititi was, but after a nomination for best director and winning an Oscar for writing "Jojo Rabbit," he was duly noted. However, your kids are about to worship the New Zealander, first as the writer and director of "Thor: Love and Thunder," opening February 2022, and for writing and directing the upcoming "Star Wars" epic.

MGM may operate out of an office instead of a studio these days, but they were the winner in the bidding war for Ron Howard's upcoming $55 million film "Thirteen Lives." The film, by the Oscar-nominated writer of "Gladiator," is about the gripping rescue of the Wild Boar soccer team and their coach from that flooded cave in

While many of us are sweating next month's rent, there are some of our favorite and un-favorite celebrities who never sweat to get paid. Jennifer Aniston is pulling in $28 million a year, while "American Idol" and country star Luke Bryan deposits $52.5 million yearly. Sofia Vergara of "Modern Family" and Head & Shoulders ads makes $44 million, which will change substantially now that "Modern Family" has ended and she'll be getting even more as a new host of "America's Got Talent." Ellen DeGeneres has to settle for a mere $80.5 million a year from her various shows and commercials, while shock jocks Rush Limbaugh and Howard Stern have to squeeze by making a mere $87 million and $93 million, respectively. The Eagles rock group has to split $100 million a year, and the two leads in "Outlander," Sam Heughan and Cartriona Balfe, each make $100,000 an episode. Meanwhile, poor Vice President Mike Pence made only $235,083 for being No. 2. Guess vice doesn't pay what it used to!

Hail Britannia

Queen Elizabeth II was born on April 21, 1926, but she celebrates her birthday on several different days. The English monarch's birthday had been celebrated on the actual date of his or her birth since 1788. But in 1936, after King George V died, the date was changed to the second Monday in June to commemorate his death and to get better weather for the "Trooping the Color," a British regimental parade. The date was changed again in 1959 to the second Saturday in June. To add to the confusion, some places, including Canada, Australia and New Zealand, chose a different day. In 2020, her 94th it will be celebrated in Britain on Saturday, June 13.

A Roman goddess was the inspiration for Britannia, the personification of Britain, by 1797. She always wears a Corinthian helmet, carries a trident or spear and has a lion lying at her feet. This Staffordshire figure of Britannia was made about 1820. It was sold at a Thomaston auction for $586.

Q: I have a Louis Vuitton of Paris trunk. For its age, I think it's in excellent condition inside and out. It is marked on the inside "Louis Vuitton (in script) / 1 Rue Scribe Paris / 454 Strand London" and has the number 117 033. What is it worth, and where can I get the best price?

A: Louis Vuitton Malletier (1821-1892) opened a shop in 1854 in Paris. The first trunk was introduced in 1858. Vuitton's trunk was covered in gray Trianon canvas, waterproof, and the first to have a flat top. The checkerboard pattern on your trunk, called Damier canvas, was introduced in 1888 and is still used. Squares were either deep red and white (rare) or dark and light brown, like your trunk. Worked into the design is a trademark logo. From about 1890 to 1900, the Vuitton London store was located at 454 Strand, near Trafalgar Square. That address plus the serial number on your trunk dates it to the late 1890s.

MANY FIGURES OF Britannia were made with a bright-yellow dress as well as the helmet, spear and lion. She represents unity, liberty and national pride. This figure, 11 inches high by 8 inches wide, sold at auction for $586.

The value of Vuitton steamer trunks depends on condition. In rough condition, your trunk is worth $3,000 to $4,000. In professionally cleaned but not restored condition, the value would be $5,000 to $7,000. In completely restored condition, L.V. trunks like yours have sold for as much as $23,000 at auction.

CURRENT PRICES

Sterling silver belt buckle, interwoven bands, enamel decoration, Cymric, Archibald Knox, Liberty & Co., 1903, 2 1/2 inches, $500.

Gorham bowl, copper, hammered, applied silver insects, heron & fruit, bulbous, ruffled rim, early 20th century, 3 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches, $1,415.

Shaker sign, "Shaker Store, Plain & Fancy Goods," wood, stenciled letters, old paint, 13 x 52 inches, $3,480.

Barbie doll, No. 1, brunette ponytail, striped swimsuit, original accessories, box, Mattel, $5,750.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Lucie Winborne

• Who says you have to be human to serve your country? Between 2001 and 2009, a goat called William ("Billy") Windsor was part of the 1st Battalion Infantry Unit of The Royal Welsh, with the title of lance corporal, no less. Although he was briefly demoted to fusilier following "unacceptable behavior" at Queen Elizabeth's official birthday celebrations, he eventually saw the error of his ways and regained his more esteemed rank.

• Actor Brad Pitt chipped out pieces of his own front teeth to play the role of Tyler Durden in the movie "Fight Club."

• And speaking of teeth ... in the American Civil War, soldiers were required to have at least four opposing front teeth so they could open a gunpowder pouch. Some draftees had their front chompers removed to avoid service.

• What's in a name? Depends on where you're from. When the Coca-Cola Company was ready to import to China, it needed a moniker that fit with the majority of that country's spoken languages. The original choice, "Kekoukela," sounded phonetically similar, but in certain dialects translates to "bite the wax tadpole" or "female horse stuffed with wax." Further research yielded a far more satisfactory solution, "Kekoukele," meaning "tasty fun."

• Romantic poet Percy Bysshe Shelley was one of literature's first prominent vegans.

• Scientists studying a deadly disease transmitted from camels also found that the animals contained the pathogens from which the common cold was born. Do we now know whom to blame?

• As many as 35% of people who hire a professional cleaning service admitted to cleaning up before the help arrives.

• Native Southerners might well be surprised to learn that the word "y'all" dates to 1631! It was first used by the English scholar William Lisle in the sentence, "The captive men of strength I gave to you, the weaker sold; and this y'all know is true."

Thought for the Day: "Although the world is full of suffering, it is also full of the overcoming of it." -- Helen Keller

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

• If you love a good BOGO deal, you're not alone. Oftentimes, for items like condiments or staples, this means you need a place to put it until it's time to use. For items that are safe to store at room temperature, find a place that it out of direct light, and is cool and dark. But avoid lower cabinets that are close to the stove or dishwasher, as these can get quite warm.

• Tackle the nitty gritty around knobs and crevices of your kitchen appliances with a toothbrush! Just dampen it, add a bit of baking soda for a gritty scrub that won't scratch, and then dip it in dish soap to cut through grease and grime.

• "Want your readers to last longer? Keep them in a fabric pouch when not in use. You can attach a keychain ring to a fabric pouch and hang that from a lanyard worn around your neck if you want to keep them on you. Reading glasses bump into many things and can get scratched easily, so protect them." -- F.J. in Florida

• Maybe you're not putting miles on your vehicle like you used to, but don't neglect your car! Take some time to get your car's interior looking great so she'll be ready when you get back on the road. Give the upholstery a good cleaning. Bust out the detail brushes on your vacuum or shop vac, and give leather and plastic surfaces a wipe down with a protectant.

• Never scrub a cast iron skillet. It needs the patina in order to heat food evenly. Here's how to keep your's operational: Clean with a stiff brush and regular dish soap. Rinse clean, and dry immediately, preferably by placing it on a warm to hot burner for a few minutes. When dry, rub with a light coating of oil.

Q: Will "Young Sheldon" be returning with new episodes this fall? It's my favorite sitcom, and I love the tradition of all the new shows starting in the fall. Is that wishful thinking during this crazy year? -- P.B.

A: As of now, CBS plans to launch the fall season as scheduled. Now, that could be delayed to November, which is technically still fall, but the network made a statement recently that "Young Sheldon," with Iain Armitage in the title role, will air Thursday nights, followed by another Chuck Lorre-produced sitcom, "B Positive."

CBS is the only major network so far to announce plans to return to an on-time schedule of new episodes this fall. According to Entertainment Weekly magazine, Fox plans to have a "truncated" fall schedule, and the CW network is postponing its next new season until January. Let's keep our fingers crossed that CBS' optimistic thinking becomes a reality.

Tell me about the actors. Some of them look familiar. When did it first appear on Netflix? -- E.R.

A: "Cable Girls," set in the late 1920s in Madrid, Spain, is about four women who work at a telephone company in a patriarchal society. It's an original series produced by Netflix Spain that began in 2017. Filmed originally in Spanish, you have the option to watch it dubbed with English or have it play in Spanish but with English subtitles.

The four lead actresses are all of Spanish descent. Ana Fernandez, who plays Carlota, was born in Madrid and has been acting overseas since 2007. Her credits include the romantic comedy "Just a Little Chemistry," which originally went by the title "Solo Quimica." Both Nadia de Santiago, who plays Marga, and Ana Polvorosa, who plays Sara, starred in the series "Love in Difficult Times," which is set during the Spanish Civil War. Lastly, Blanca Suarez, who also narrates the show, plays Lidia and is probably best known for her roles in "The Boarding School" and "The Boat." She also acted in acclaimed director Pedro Almodovar's film "The Skin I Love In," which earned her a Goya Award, which are like the Oscars of Spain.

Q: I just discovered the show "Cable Girls" on Netflix, which is dubbed.

Q: Whatever happened to the actress who starred in the TV show "Castle"?

IAIN ARMITAGE as Young Sheldon

I haven't seen her in anything since that show abruptly ended. -- Y.M.

A: Stana Katic, who played Kate Beckett opposite Nathan Fillion's Richard Castle, was let go by producers shortly before the show was canceled. It was reportedly for budget reasons, but it was a huge disappointment for fans who loved the romantic chemistry between the two leads.

Katic currently stars in the Amazon TV series "Absentia" as an FBI agent accused of murder. She recently told Australia's "Daily Telegraph" that her conclusion with "Castle" left her "confused" and "hurt," but that she was "so thankful" to have been a part of it. As for Fillion, he stars in the ABC police drama "The Rookie."

Each numbered row contains two clues and two 6-letter answers. The two answers differ from each other by only one letter, which has already been inserted. For example, if you exchange the A from MASTER for an I, you get MISTER. Do not change the order of the letters.

Outdoor Fun With Pets While Social Distancing

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: Even though stay-at-home orders have been lifted in my state, we still have to social distance when out in public. Where can I take my dog, "Blake," that isn't too crowded? The beaches are already filled with people. -- Staying Safe on the East Coast

DEAR SAFE: After so many weeks stuck indoors, it's natural that people are rushing to get outside into parks or next to the water. That not only is a safety concern when trying to keep the spread of the new coronavirus under control, but also for dogs who may be stressed by so many people or feel threatened by other dogs.

If the beach is Blake's favorite spot, the best way to maintain social distance (and give him more room to romp around) is to go at times when few people are there. That means going as early in the morning as possible, if you can, hitting the beach at sunrise, and heading home before too many people start arriving.

The same strategy applies to dog parks and outdoor recreation spots. Even trails in my area that I thought of as remote, or not very popular, are crowded with day hikers struggling to pass each other on the narrow paths. You may need to do what I did, and switch to an early morning weekday schedule when fewer people frequent these public areas.

Once the outdoor play time or hike is complete, and before you hop back into the car, wipe down Blake's outer coat and paws with a clean cloth, checking for scratches or ticks. That way you won't bring home any other potential pathogens.
